TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE
HARRIET,
COUNTESS OF SHAFTESBURY, WIFE OF ANTHONY, EIGHTH EARL OF SHAFTESBURY, AND ONLY DAUGHTER OF
GEORGE HAMILTON, THIRD MARQUIS OF DONEGALL,

This Volume,

CONTAINING THE RECORDS OF THE CORPORATION OF BELFAST, FOUNDED AT THE INSTANCE OF HER FAMOUS ANCESTOR, SIR ARTHUR CHICHESTER, BARON OF BELFAST, IS,
WITH HER LADYSHIP'S GRACIOUS PERMISSION,
MOST RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED.

TO THE READER.

ELFAST, unlike many of the ancient boroughs in Great Britain and Ireland, possesses very few original documents illustrative of its early history. One of great importance, however, exists in the MS. containing the contemporary records of the old Corporation, now printed for the first time in the present work, by the kind permission of the owner, Mrs. Torrens, Edenmore, Whiteabbey.

The painstaking historian of Belfast, the late George Benn, devoted a chapter of his well-known "History" to its contents, which he also referred to in his earlier volume, published in 1823. When the Municipal Reform Commissioners took evidence here in 1833, it was submitted for their inspection, together with a second book containing the later minutes, since lost. Henry Joy, the leading authority on local history, copied a few extracts about the end of the last century; while Dr. Kirkpatrick, in his work entitled "Presbyterian Loyalty Displayed," printed in 1713, made the first reference to it under the title of "Common Town Book of Belfast."

These writers only used such portions as suited their immediate purpose, and gave them, moreover, in a modernised form. The aim of the Editor has therefore been, as far as possible, to give a faithful reproduction of the original, with its solecisms and its peculiarities of spelling and punctuation, some unusual contractions in the earlier portion excepted.

The manuscript consists of four hundred leaves foolscap folio, of which one hundred and thirteen are blank pages. The paper is of excellent quality, with five separate watermarks, some foreign. A court hand is used for the earlier entries, many of which are very illegible in places, increased by the faded colour of the ink. Considerable difficulty was experienced in arranging the entries chronologically, partly because minutes had frequently been entered on blank portions of pages already written on, but mainly because the different sheets were kept loose for many years, and when subsequently discovered by the Marquis of Donegall in an old chest, were further disarranged by F. Bedford, who bound the existing volume.

In the printing of the work every effort was made to reproduce, by means of appropriate type, the quaint headings, &c., as originally written.

The only additions are the ornamental capital letters and the woodcuts in the text. All the proofs were corrected by the Editor directly from the Town Book itself, a process which occupied the evenings of many months.

The words printed within brackets [] are struck through in the original with a pen, as corrections ; and those printed in italics are interlineated in the manuscript. In the Notes the Editor has endeavoured to give fresh information from sources not hitherto accessible, supplementing Benn's and other well-known Histories. A Chronological List of Notable Events is prefixed to the work, in which will be found a number of interesting items not previously printed.

The Editor has been much encouraged in his labours (carried on in the intervals of professional duties) by the interest taken in the work by numerous friends. His best thanks are especially due to that most distinguished scholar, the Right Reverend William Reeves, D.D., President R.I.A., Lord Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, for his invaluable services in reading over and assisting in the correction of the proofs. The Editor's thanks are also tendered to the Countess of Shaftesbury, the Viscountess of Templetown, the Earl of Belmore, G.C.M.G. ; The Belfast Harbour Commissioners, the Churchwardens of St. Anne's, Thomas H. Torrens, Esq., J.P. ; C. H. Brett, Esq. ; Lavens M. Ewart, Esq., J.P., M.R.I.A. ; Samuel Black, Esq., Town Clerk ; R. Meyer, Esq., Chief Clerk ; Robert Day, Esq., J.P., F.S.A., M.R.I.A., Cork ; Rev. G. Hill ; Rev. A. Gordon, M.A., Manchester ; Rev. James O'Lavery, P.P., M.R.I.A. ; H. M^cN. M^cCormick, Esq. ; J. Henderson, Esq., M.A. ; W. H. Patterson, Esq., M.R.I.A. ; Classon Porter, Esq., Ballygally Castle ; W. Swanston, Esq., F.G.S. ; J. A. Rentoul, Esq., M.P., LL.D., London ; Rev. W. Reynell, B.D., Dublin ; J. W. E. Macartney, Esq., D.L., Clogher Park ; Rev. Prof. G. T. Stokes, D.D., T.C.D. ; John Vinycomb, Esq., F.R.S.A.I. ; Talbot B. Reed, Esq., London ; Rev. Charles Scott, M.A. ; and to the Librarians at the British Museum, the Public Record Offices, London and Dublin, and the Bodleian Library.

Special thanks are also due to Miss Lewis, Nettlefield, for the use of the original Town Seal. Other friends will be found mentioned in the Notes.

The Frontispiece is based on the perspective drawing executed by D. Hanna, C.E., in 1883, of which only a few copies exist.

The quaint woodcuts used in the text are the work of James Smith, a local "engraver on wood, 30, Millfield" (Bradshaw's Directory, 1819). He worked for F. D. Finlay, whose books printed at the time contain many of the cuts. Permission to use them was kindly granted by the Northern Whig Co., through their manager, Mr. W. Darragh.

Right Trusty and Right well beloved Cosins and Right trusty & well beloved Cosins and trusty and Right well beloved wee greet yo^u well: Wee cannot have a better reason to promise ourselfe an end of our comon sufferings and calamities and that our own just power and authority will with God's Blessing be restored to us, then y^e wee heare yo^u are again acknowledged to have that authority and Jurisdiction which hath allwayes belonged to yo^u by yo^r birth and the Fundamentall Lawes of the Land: and wee have thought it very fitt and safe for us to call to yo^u for yo^r help in y^e composing the confounding distempers and distractions of y^e Kingdome in w^{ch} yo^r sufferings are next to those wee have undergone ourselfe: And therefore yo^u cannot but be the most proper Counsellors [from] for removeing those mischiefs and for preventing the like for y^e future How great a trust wee repose in yo^u for the procuring and establishing a Blessed peace and security for y^e Kingdome will appeare to yo^u: by our enclosed Declaration which trust wee are most confident you will discharge with that Justice & and wisdom that becomes yo^u and must allwayes be expected from yo^u and that upon yo^r experience how one violation succeeds another when y^e known Relations and Rulers of Justice are once transgressed yo^u will bee as as (sic) Jealous for the Rights of the Crown and for the Honno^r of yo^r King as for yo^r selves and then cannot but discharge yo^r trust with good success and provide for and establish the Peace Happiness and Honno^r of King Lords and Comons upon that foundation which can only support it and wee shall be all happy in each other: and as the whole Kingdom will blesse God for yo^u all so wee shall hold our Self obliged in a speciall manner to thank yo^u in particular according to y^e affection yo^u shall express towards us wee need y^e less enlarge to yo^u upon this subject because wee have likewise writ to y^e house of Comons w^{ch} wee suppose will communicate to yo^u: And wee pray God to blesse yo^r joint endeavours for y^e good of us all and so wee bid yo^u very heartily farewell Given at our Court at Breda, this day of Aprill 1660.

CHARLES: R

CHARLES, by the Grace of God King of England Scotland France and Ireland defender of the faith &c to all our loveing subjects of what degree or quallity soever, Greeting if the generall distraction and confusion which is spread over the whole Kingdom doth not awaken all men to a desire and Longing that those wounds which have so many yeares together been kept bleeding may be bound up all wee can say will be to no purpose: However after this Long silence we have thought it our duty to declare how much we desire to contribute thereunto and that as we can never give over the hope in good time to obtaine the possession of that R^l which God and nature hath made our due so wee doe make it our dayly suit to ye divine providence that hee will in compassion to us and our subjects after so long misery and sufferings comitt and putt us into a quiet and Peaceable possession of that our Right with as little blood and damage to our people as is possible, Nor doe wee desire more to enjoy what is ours than that all our subjects may enjoy what by Law is theirs by a full and entire administration of Justice throughout the Land and by extending our marcy where it is wanted and deserved.

And to y^e end that the fear of punishment may not engage any conscious to themselves of what is passed to a p^rseverance in guilt for the future by opposing the quiet and happiness of their Country in the Restoration both of King Peers and people to their Just Ancient and Fundamentall Rights wee doe by these presents declare that wee doe grant a Free and Generall pardon which wee are ready upon demand to pass under our Great Seal of England to all our subjects of what degree or quallity soever who within fourty days after the publishing hereof shall lay hold upon this our grace and favor and shall by any publick act declare their doeing so. And that they retourn to the Loyalty and obedience of good Subjects (excepting onely such persons as shall hereafter be excepted by Parliam^t) those only excepted. Lett all our loveing subjects how faulty soever relie upon y^e word of a Kinge solemnly given by this present declaracon that noe crime whatsoever committed against us or our Royall Father before the publication of this shall ever rise in Judgment or be brought in question against any of them to the least endamage-ment of them either in their lives Liberties or Estates or (as far forth as lies in our power) so much as to the prejudice of their Reputations by any Reproch or term of distinction from y^e rest of our best subjects wee desireing and ordaining that henceforward all notes discord separation and difference of Parties be utterly abolished among all our subjects whom wee invite and conjure to a perfect union among themselves under our protection for y^e resettlement of our Just Rights and theirs in a free Parliam^t by which upon the word of a Kinge wee will be advised

And because the Passion and uncharitableness of the times have produced severall opinions in Religion by which men are engaged in Parties and animosities against each other which when they shall hereafter unite in a freedom of conversation will be composed or better understood wee doe declare a Liberty to tender Consciences and that no man shall be disquieted or called in question for differences of opinion in religion which doe not disturbe the peace of the Kingdom And that wee shall be ready to consent to such an Act of Parliament as upon mature deleberation shall be offred to us for y^e full granting that indullgence.

And because in the continuall distractions of so many yeares and soe many and great Revolutions money grants and purchases of Estates have been made to and by many officers Soldiers and others who are now possessed of the same and who may be lyable to actions at Law upon severall titles wee are likewise willing that all such differences and all things relating to such grants sales and purchases shall be determined in Parliament which can best provide for the just satisfacon of all men who are concerned.

And wee doe further declare that wee will be ready to consent to any Act or Acts of Parliament to y^e Purposes afforesaid and for y^e full satisfaction of all arrears due to y^e officers and y^e Souldiers of y^e Army under y^e command of Generall Monck and that they shall be retained in our service upon as good pay and conditions as they now enjoy.

At an Assembly held 22nd Octob^r 1686 for the Borrough of Belfast certaine rules and orders were established & made for ye preventing unnecessary delays in ye proceedings of the Court of Record held for ye said Borrough

- HE plaintiff is to enter his action with ye Towne Clarke or his deputy and take from him an attachment directed to ye serjeants or one of them and signed by ye Sovereigne for the time being to arrest ye body or goods of the defendant to answer his plaint next Court upon executing of w^{ch} writt ye defendant may give any substantiell freeman Bayle and no other then such at the will of the Clarke or Serj^t who are to answer such Bayle to ye Court and all such Bayle to be recorded with ye action in ye Court booke
- 2 That after ye attachment is executed if the defendant be in custody for want of Baile and the[deft] plaintiff charge him not with a declaracion next Court he shall be nonsuited and pay costs and if Baile be taken the plaintiff is next Court after such arrest made to file his declaration and for want thereof a Rule to be entered that the plaintiff declaire ye next Court ffollowing or to be nonsuited and if no declaration be then filed the plaintiff to be nonsuited according to ye Rule & pay costs.
 - 3 If the plaintiff file his declaracion according to ye rule then a rule to be entered that ye defendant plead next Court or Judgem^t & for want of w^{ch} plea judgem^t to passe by default with costs of Court & soe of other pleadings the above methods to be observed.
 - 4 If any ffreeman sue another ffreeman then he is to repaire to the Towne Clarke or deputy & enter his action & from him receive a summons to ye defendant to appeare next Court to answer ye plaintiff w^{ch} if he appeare to the rules to be entered as in the case of attachm^t above is mencioned. if he doe not appeare upon ye Sumons then attachment is to be taken out in manner afforesaid and ye rules and proceedings to be entered in maner and forme as afforesaid
 - 5 That noe forraigne plea to be received into ye Court or filed as a record without the oath of the party or his Attorney who tenders the same.
 - 6 That demures in inferior Courts and upon smale actions tend more to delay them justice and therefore not to be allowed in the Court without being signed by Councell and if the Court suspect the reality of its being signed while perhaps such Councell lives remote the Demurrer not [being signed] to be accepted unlesse ye party produceing the same or his Attorney make oath that it is really signed by such Councell

- 7 That upon every Judgm^t by default confession by verdict or non pross that ye party for whom such judgment passes shall come to ye record and by the Clerk have his [Judgm^t] execucion drawne up and signed by the Sovereigne to leavy the sune awarded by such Judgm^t with ye costs of the party and for want of his body or goods ags^t the Bail or manucaptor if he be defendant or agst the pledge if plaintiff. the same to be on one writt for ye more speedy proceeding.
- 8 It is allwayes provided that notwithstanding the afforesaid Rules the Sovereigne hath liberty to continue ye same upon affidavett made or for such other reasons as to him shall appeare : the said Rules being chiefly designed to bound the litigious delays of the Attorneys who are hereby ordered to be concluded by ye said Rules or to be debarred from practice in ye Court or have such other cheques as the Sovereigne judges convenient.
- 9 That upon all fines at Courts of Assembly for non appearance or other fines whatsoever then inflicted if the Court think fitt to mitigate or remitt such fines that notwithstanding the party amerced shall pay twelve pence ster to ye Clerk for cleareing the said fine upon ye Record Role according to a former order of the Sovereigne and Burgesses in ye year 1680

At an Assembly of the Sovereaigne & Burgesses on Saturday the 14th of May 1687

RESOLVED

That whereas by Mr Martins letter of the 12th instant (who solicites the affair about the charter) there is hazard of Judgm^t being entered up agst it for not sending up the originall pattent to be p^rduced to the Attorney Genrall as a voucher to the plea filed pursuant to a peremptory rule of Court of ye 9th instant It is now resolved that the s^d charter be forthwith sent up to Mr Martin our s^d solicitor by Hugh Crafford an expresse, that Mr Martin may use all possible meanes to p^revent or retrieve what contempts Judgments or other misavencincies may be placed upon us for the reason aforesaid & it is now accordingly sent up

APPLICAⁿ being made to his Ex^{cy} by the Roman Catholique officers Garrisoned in that town, that there is no convenient or fitt place appointed for their hearing Masse and Divine Service on Sundays and Holy-Days, but an old ruinous house; his Ex^{cy} taking it to considerⁿ directs me to desire and require you to lett the said officers and Sould^{rs} make use of, either the Town house or School house or some other decent & fitt place for the said divine service, as in all other Corpora^{cs} of the Kingdom the Magistrats do freely allow, and is expected you will likewise do, and not doubting of yo^r compliance herein,

Belfast 7b^r 12. 1688

I have comunicated yo^{rs} of the 7th inst to my brethern the Burgesses of this Corporacon, we have considered of the Contents thereof, and are heartily sorry that his Ex^{cy} should happen to desire of us what is not in our power to grant. As for the Schoolhouse it being of the foundation and free gift of the Lorde Donegall deceased and now repaired and supported by his heirs, 'twere presumption in us to dispose of what we have only a comon interest with all others His Ma^{ties} Subjects. And for the town house it being the onely place purchased and sett apart by the Lord and Inhabitants of the Manor & Corporaⁿ of Belfast, for keeping Courts, holding of Sessions, and frequent meetings of the Sovereign and Burgesses for regulating and dispatching the affairs of the Corporacon, we canot (wthout great injury to the Town, and depriving ourselves of those conveniencies necessity forced us to provide for) comply wth what His Ex^{cy} desires of us. We doubt not but the officers and Souldiers you speak of, may if they please meet wth a conveniency in town, but the poverty of our Corporacon & uncertainty of its continuance is such, no revenue Lands tenements nor salary belonging to it, it seems a little hard to expect that the charge of such provision should be laid wholly on y^e Sovereign and Burgesses especially now enjoying the liberties of our charter only ex gratia. Since our circumstances are such, we hope S^r you will become our advocat to his Ex^{cy} to assure him what is really true that our noncompliance proceeds not from any peevish perverse humour but only want of ability and opportunity to gratify his Expectations whose demands shall always be observed to the utmost of our power.

ADAM my sister, it is allwaies with the uttmost sattisfaction that I doe justice to those worthy persons who signalize themselves by their conduct and valour in their Maj^{ties} service and mine,

My Lord Donegall was remarkably so when alive; and more particularly the last siege of my City of Barcelonie; both in his quicknesse in succouring it from Girona, and the long valliant defence he made in fort Mountjouy where he lost his life, att the assault; it is in a great measure to his memory that I am indebted for the preservation of that capital; and it may be for all the possions I now have in Spain I shall injure yo^r Majesties usuall generosity by offering to recomend to yo^r ffavour the family of soe worthy a gentleman for I know yo^r Maj^{ties} inclynacions go to it I will only add that I shall place all yo^r markes of favour and acknowledgem^t wth yo^r Maj^{ties} will please to bestow on ye ffamily to my own account as well as the remaining obligacions I am with the sincere respect gratitude and love &c

On the 24th day of June one thousand seven hundred and seven being the day by Charter for electing a Sovereigne of Belfast to serve for one year from Michaelmas next ensuing, Pa^t Duff Esq^r p^rsented to the Sovereign & Burgesses a letter from the R^t Hon^{ble} the Countess of Donegall containing a list of Burgesses for the said office dated 19th June who were Michael Harrison Esq^r. Capt Edward Brice and Mr John Chambers & the said elecion fell upon Capt Edw^d Brice.

The Corporation of Belfast hath power to make By Laws & punish offenders by fines with ye generall proviso that nothing shall impower them to act contrary to ye Law of this Kingdom By colour of which within seven years past they have raised a yearly shipmoney tax, by charging two pence per tunne on all vessels that carry loading out of their dock notwithstanding ye Dock of Belfast is a free landing place by Act of Parliament. They have also raised several summs of money to oppose ye Establisht minister in ye prosecution of his just right, and compelled his parishoners to bear large proportions by distraining & selling ye goods of those that refused to join in so unlawfull an undertaking

Their presentments are generally made by persons that have little or no Estate or free rents who are Dissentors from ye Church of England their Applotters are seldom if ever sworn equally to assess ye money great part of w^{ch} they charge on y^e free rents of those that have interest in Belfast and liberty thereof even gentlemen that are neither freemen nor trade wth them & who are not concerned in their Corporation whether they dwell in y^e City of Dublin or elsewhere. They refuse coppies of their presentments & disbursements to such as are willing to pay any Rate that can be demanded for y^e same & thereby prevent their making it publicly appear how unjust their levies are and how oft they raise money for pretended works & necessities w^{ch} is never applied to y^e same and also have extravagantly they dispose of y^e said money. They have long prevented any endeavours to redress these grievances by threatning to humble all that oppose them.

Resolved

On the question that by ye act to prevent ye further growth of popery ye Burgesses of Belfast are obliged to subscribe the Declaration & receive ye Sacrament according to ye usage of ye Church of Ireland.

Resolved

That ye Burgess ship of such Burgesses of Belfast who have not subscribed ye Declaration & received ye Sacrament pursuant to ye said act are by such neglect become vacant.

A further Question being proposed that ye takeing two pence per tunne by ye Corporation of Belfast for every ship that comes to ye key of Belfast is arbitrary and illegall and a debate arising thereon

HEADS of A Bill for finishing the Key and Clensing and Keeping in repaire the harbour and dock of Belfast Anno

Whereas the port of Belfast in ye Province of Ulster hath by long experience been found to be of great Importance to her Maj^{ties} Renew Trade in generall and to the benefit and advantage of all the Countyes adjoyneing thereunto

And Whereas the Sovereigne Burgesses and Comonalty of Belfast have for many yeares at great expences maintained and repaired the Key on both sides the River and by continuall cleansing and scouring the Dock and in [repaireing] keepeing up perches on the sides of the Chanell of the harbour there have preserved a free and open passage for boats [lighters] Gabbards Lighters and other vessells to come up and discharge their Lading at the same Key wth expences they were enabled to defray by a certaine Tunnage wth the Merchants and Traders there voluntarily consent and agree to pay for that end and purpose

And whereas the said paym^t for want of the authority of Parliament has ben of late discontinued and the great unavoidable charge w^{ch} is dayly necessary for preserving the said port is become unsupportable by the said Sovereigne Burgesses and Comonality who have not nor ever had any Lands or Renew belonging to them whereby the saide Key is become ruinous and the Dock and Channell choaked up to such a degree as that the said port and harbour so beneficial must inevitably in a little time become Inaccessible to ye determ^t of her Maj^{ties} the great prejudice of Trade and the utter ruine and Impoverishing of the Inhabitants and adjacent Countyes ffor Remedy whereof may it please your most Excellent Maj^{ties} at the humble request of the said Sovereigne Burgesses and Commonality of Belfast that it may be enacted and wee pray it may be enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Ma^{ties} by and with the consent of the Lords Spirituall and Temporall and Comons in this present Parliament Assembled and by Authority of the same that from and after the first day of August in this present yeare of our Lord one thousand seaven hundred and nine all Brittish and Irish ships Employed or made use of to import or export any goods or merchandizes out of or into the said port of Belfast (Ships in pay of Her Ma^{ties} her heirs or Successors only excepted) shall pay to the said Sovereigne Burgesses and Comonality of Belfast and their Successors or to such person or persons as shall be by them appointed to receive the same for their use Two pence per Tunn for every Tunn such ship or ships shall be burthen and for every Foreigne ship or ships so employed or made use of to import or export any goods or merchandizes out of or Into the said port of Belfast shall pay as afforesaid three pence per Tunn for every Tunn such shipp or ships shall be burthen wth Tunnage as well in Brittish and Irish shippes as in foreign ships shall be computed by outward gageing of the said shippes respectively and not otherwise and ye person or persons for ye time being appointed to receive the said Tunnage is and are hereby Impowered to make such outward gauge of all and every such ship or ships as they shall have occasion for the doing thereof .

And to the end that the said respective duties of Tunnage wth shall become due by vertue of this Act may be effectually leyed and paid as afforesaid wee pray that it may be further Enacted by the authority afforesaid that noe officer of Her Maj^{ties} Customhouse in Belfast from and after the said first day of August one thousand seaven hundred and nine shall cleare or discharge any ship or ships or permitt any ship or ships outward bound to saile till the Comander or Master thereof shall have brought a discharge from the officer for the time being appointed to receive the said duties of Tunnage, Testifinge such ship or ships to have paid their Tunnage wth discharge on paying the said Tunnage shall be immediately granted and made without fee or reward fraud or delay and in case of refusal or delay the officer refusing or delaying shall forfeit five pounds sterl for every such refusall or delay to the Master or Comander of such ship to be recovered in a summary way before the Sovereigne of

BRIEF in Behalfe of the Corporacon of Belfast

The designe of this Bill is to supply the Inconveniences that the Towne of Belfast lyes under in being deprived of the Tunnage the heretofore had by vertue of a Bylaw made by consent of the Lord of the Castle for keepinge the Key the Dock and harbour in repaire.

This duty is in a maner a Tax upon the Trading men of the Corporation wth they are willingly to pay for the encouragem^t of their Trade soe as it may be in such hands as they may be assured will applye it for the advantage of Trade.

In all grants for the benefitts of Corporacons the grant is made and the managem^t thereof is intrusted to the care of the Corporation who are to reape the benefit thereof and to suppose they will misapplaye it as it layes a great imputation on them, soe it is without president to place it into any other hand

The Corporation have hitherto given sufficient Testimony of applying that duty to the repaire of the Key and since it is not in ye power of any person to show that ever there was one farthing misaplyed there no reason to doubt their care therein for the future.

The Lord of the Castle have ben heretofore allwayes inclynable to encourage the trade thereof and never interposed in any affaire relating to their Trade And as the Lords of the Castle can never be supposed to be connsant in affaires of Trade soe they never interfered with the marchants therein

The person to receive ye money and the method of layeing it out was allwayes intrusted to ye Corporation and the late Lord Donegall nor any of his predisessors Lords of the Castle never had ever desired to have any hand in the managem^t thereof.

The Corporation is willing to live easly mind their businesse and to have a good correspondence with the Lord of the Castle and they apprehend to Lett the Lord of the Castle have any hand in the managem^t of this duty will be means to creat misunderstanding between the Castle and them.

Its proposed as amendm^t to the Bill that the Lord of the Castle doe yearly present 3 Burgesses and the Corporation to chuse one of them to collect and be accountable to the Lord of Castle and the Corporation

Wee doe apprehend that is to give the intire disposall of the duty to the Lord of the Castle [& doe yearly present 3 burgesses of the Corporation to chuse one of them to be collector & to be accountable to ye said Lord of the Castle & the Corporacon] for by this means none can be Collector but by favour of the Castle and consequently will be intirely under his Governmt

if the Lord of the Castle should have the nameing of 3 Burgesses whereof the Corporacon is to chuse one the Corporacon will have no choice for by the Charter the Lord of the Castle make whom he pleaseth Constable of the Castle and he by vertue of his office is allwayes a Burgesse the Constable of the Castle is allwayes the Lords sarvant

They have named Mr Byrt to be Collector & hereafter they may name him and Capt John Chichester one of the family who is above attending such an office and the Constable of the Castle who are Burgesses or they name two with one whom they have a mind should be Collector what ellection then have the Corporation

Suppose the Lord of the Castle name Burgesses who are insolvent and Imbessell the money who shall answer it to the Corporacon besides people wont dare to call him strictly to account or to prosecute him for any mismanagem^t being the creature of a great man for feare of disoblidgeing

The nameing of 3 to be Collectors will be like the nameing of 3 to be Sovereigne the Lord of the Castle putt a marke upon the one he would have chosen Sovereign and whoe ever votes for any other is ill look'd upon by the Castle this wee have found by experience and may reasonably expect the like treatment for the future

The cause of the present misunderstanding between the Castle and the Towne is because the Towne would not consent to give up the intire managem^t of the Corporacon in making Burgesses chusing a Sovereigne and ellecting such persons to serve in Parliam^t as were recommended to them by the Castle.

As to ye Limitacion of 21 yeares its altogether unreasonable to make Temporary provision when the charge of keeping up the Key and cleansing the Dock and Channell will be perpetuall.

The clause w^{ch} requires the Collector to account before the Lord of the Castle and the Corporacon may create great confusion for by this meanes if the Lord of the Castle and the Corporacon doe not both of them approve of the Accounts the Collector who is lyable to penaltys cannot be discharged and good men will be freighted from serving.

Wee have complimented the Lord of the Castle with haveing the Accounts layed before them one every yeare by w^{ch} they will have an oppertunity of [sueing for the penalty and taking care] seeing whether there be any mis-managemt or misapplicacion and thereby have an oppertunity of suing for the penalty and takeing care that the intent of the Act be pursued and noebody will dare to tripp when they know they are to undergo such an Inquisition.

Wee had severall meeting upon this occasion before the Bill passed the house of Comons and this business of the Collector was looked upon soe unreasonable that they did thinke fitt soe much as to putt it into the Clause the brought into the house but they expressing some Jealousey as to the surplus if there should be any that the Corporacon might make a fund of it and all some time or other perhapps make use of it against the family to convince that that wee had nothing in our view butt a publick good wee complimented them with leaveing it in my Lord Donegalls power to putt a negative upon the applicacion of the surplus money, if they are not content with this the Corporacon will not consent to under the Tax unlesse they may be at liberty to dispose of it for the benefit of their trade.

Nota,

That there can be no parity of reason because the Lord Donegall has a power by the Charter to name 3 to be Sovereigne that he should here have power to name 3 to be Collector because the Sovereigne is the principall person in the Corporacon and that was a trust reposed in him by the Crown when there was not above 3 or 4 houses in the Town and the protestant Interest was not well established in that part of the Countrey to keepe Corporacon stanch in their allegiance and in the Intrest of England but even the Crown did not thinke fitt to grant any larger power for the election of the Burgesses and the choosing of all the Inferiour officers and Sarvants of the Corporacon such as this Collector must be is left intirely to ye Corporacon without the Castle and therefore to grant him this power now would be giving him more then every any of his predecessours Lords of the Castle [and therefore] ever claimed or had and would be an Innovacion upon ye Corporacon

If it be objected that ye Corporacon cannot make a by Law without the consent of the Lord of ye Castle it is true they cannot but when it is once made a by Law the Lord of the Castle as nothing to doe further with it or any power in the execution of it nor did any of the Lords of the Castle ever interfere in ye execution of the by Law which is now proposed to be confirmed by an Act of Parliam^t. Soe the single question is whether the Lord of the Castle or rather indeed now whether the Legislature do thinke this is a reasonable law and will be for the advantage of trade and her Ma^{ty}s Revenue if so the Lord of the Castle ought to have no more to doe with it upon any pretence of any power from the Charter then he has in the execution of any other of the by Lawes or then any other of his predecessors ever had.

ARTHUR LORD CHICHESTER BARRON of BELLFAST in y^e County of Antrim in y^e Province of Ulster in y^e North of Ireland was a younger son of S^r John Chichester of Rawley near Barnstable in Devonshire where he attained to Capacity for y^e University he was sent to Oxford and was of Exetter College he was only a Gramer Scholler and being very active strong and ingenious took affection to a Millitary Course he went first into Ireland taking with him for Companion Bartholomew Fortescue my fathers youngest Brother whom he much loved he being as I have often heard his Lord^{sh} say very good Company a valient strong man and one of y^e best wrestlers in those times they stay'd a while with S^r George Bouchiers who was then Master of y^e Ordinance in Ireland and son of y^e Earl of Bath and father of this Earl a Noble Gentleman they had been Actors with other young gentlemen of a youthfull rash trick in England for which they fled into Ireland and when their friends had obtained their pardon of Queen Elizabeth they returned to England soon after my Lord Chichester who was then but Master Chichester adventured abroad for advancement and ffortescue turned sea Cap^t and died in that employment Chichester was afterwards made Cap^t of one of y^e Queen's best ships under y^e command of y^e Lord Sheffield at y^e Sea fight with y^e Spanish Arnado in 1588

He had y^e comand of one of y^e Queen's ships with 500 men in S^r Francis Drakes last voyage to y^e west Indies. S^r Francis Drake died there at that time He was a volunteer in y^e Earl of Essexes voyage to Spain and at Cales Captain Paul Chichester who was an able darring man being slayn with a bullett y^e Earl of Essex gave him his Company.

He was Sergeant Major Generall of y^e Queen's Army in Pickardy under y^e comand of S^r Thomas Buskervill and at y^e seige of Ameans was shott in y^e shoulder and for his couragious good service then and in those warrs was there knighted by King Henry y^e fourth.

When those civill warrs were ended he went into y^e Low Countries where he had a Company of 200 men which then was his subsistance but S^r Rob: Cicell Secretary of State to y^e Queen being very much his noble friend telling her Maj^{ty} what pitty it was so able a gentleman should bury his time in that Country with a single Company she haveing Imployment for him in Ireland where his Brother S^r John Chichester was slayn with a bullett; got Leave of y^e Queen to send for him, he being then garrisoned at Ostend, and to employ him in y^e service of Ireland with a Regm^t of 1200 men, with which command he was sent thither and according to his commision landed them with himself at Dublin S^r Adam Loftus of Rathfernam Lord Chancellor and S^r Rob: Gardiner Lord Chief Justice being Lords Justices in y^e intervals Between y^e death of y^e Lord Barrows Lord Deputy who dyed at Newry and y^e coming of y^e Earl of Essex Lord Lievtent from Dublin he was sent with a Regm^t to garrison at Tradath within a short time after y^e Earl of Essex arived at Dublin with y^e Gallantry of England and hearing much in praise of S^r Arthur Chichester and perfection of his Regm^t made a journey purposely with his Gallants to see him and S^r Arthur haveing drawn his Regm^t up in a most fair field and exerased them perfectly at which he was excellent they being in close order y^e Earl thinking to put a sully on them by breaking throw them charged at them with his Gallants Cavallry but y^e Collonell not being used to receve foyles had so ordered his Pikes as they forced y^e Earl to a Corry Coale and upon his wheele a saucie fellow with his Pike prickt his Lord^{sh} saving your reverence in y^e Rear and made him bleed; so he haveing enough of that smarting sport, he retreated giving y^e Collenell and his Regm^t high praise. his Lord^{sh} stayed but a short while in Ireland then came S^r Charles Blunt Lord Mountjoy Lord Deputy and was after Earl of Devonshire who within few months made S^r Arthur Chichester Serjeant Major Generall of y^e Army he well knowing his strong Abillities in ffrance and y^e Low Countries where they had been intimate friends S^r Harry Danvers who was afterwards made by King James Lord Danvers and Earl of Danby was before Major Generall: about six months after he was made Governor of Carrickfergus and those parts which being so far off from y^e Lord Generall: as he could not attend to receive and distribute his orders S^r John Barkley was made Major Generall: who about a year after was slayn with a bullett at y^e taking of an Island in a logh called Maherleeco in y^e County of Ardmagh then was S^r Arthur Chichester made Major Generall again and at lenth had that office by patent dureing life and after his invading y^e County of Tyrone by boats over Logh Neagh from Maserine in y^e County of Antrim and raising a ffort at his landing place which was after named Mountjoy he was made Governor thereof and y^e adjacent countries by Pattents and Admirall of Logh Neagh by y^e name of Logh Chichester y^e next year y^e Queen dying King James made y^e Lord Deputy Mountjoy Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and S^r Arthur Chichester S^r Harry Docwray and S^r W^m Godolfin Privy Councillors of Ireland which was when they were upon their March with y^e army in Munster to reduce y^e Citty of Watterford Cork and Limrick that rebelled and would not proclaime King James as their King but they were forced to it and some of y^e Chief actors hanged at Cork y^e next Spring y^e Lord Lievten^t went for England all being at Peace in Ireland so did S^r Arthur Chichester and S^r George Carry of Cockinton in Devonshire who was then Treasurer in Ireland was for ye p^rsent left Lord Deputy and about two years after or less it being in 1604 S^r Arthur Chichester was made Lord Deputy which he held twelve years which was longer than Ever any did before or since and towards his end of that Governm^t he was made Barron of Belfast his own Town and after his rendering up of y^e King's sword was made Lord High Treasurer of Ireland then he retired to his Estate and Governm^t in Ulster and about three years after was by Lett^r from King James called into England and imployed Ambassador to y^e Princes of y^e Union in Germany and in short time after his return was made one of y^e Councill of Warr and within few months one of y^e Lords of y^e Privy Councill of England and in few years after dyed in London much lamented by all that knew him he was buried at Carrickfergus where he had built y^e noblest brave house in y^e Kingdom and had prepared a neate Tomb to receive him when when (sic) God should please to send him to it.

He was one so farr from ambition and coveteousness that he nether by friends nor of himself [would] moved for advancm^t Millitary or Civill but still it was confereed on him unsought as all those commands and honours were w^{ch} he had by favour of S^r Rob: Cicill Earl of Salisbury y^e Earl of Devonshire and Lastly from King James so likewise was his Knighthood by ye King of ffrance all w^{ch} certainly would not have been lay'd on him had he not been a very meriting man and of such deportm^t as gained a generall good opinion and Love.

To my Knowledge y^e Earl of Devonshire in time of his being Lord Deputy said he wondered at S^r Arthur Chichester for others prest him for many things but he for nothing but grumbled like a right western man and that he had twice made him Major Generall and given him two Governm^{ts} those of Carrickfergus and Tyrone and knew not what more to do for him at p^rsent but make him Lievtenant Generall: of y^e Army which he would do if he found him grumbling still and then unless he could make him Generall: and Lord Deputy he had done as much as was in him to do for him at lenth he made him both Loveing him very much. He never sought y^e honour of Barron nor knew it was coming to him untill y^e first Lord Caulfield who was then S. Toby Caulfield brought him a Patent for it from y^e King as a present from S^r Humphrey May who had in England y^e mannage and disposall of all Irish affairs and procured it for him Loveing him heartly they being ancient acquaintances and friends.

I well know that King James by his Lett^{rs} of favour and grace called my Lord Chichester into England in 1613 he being then Lord Deputy S^r Humphrey May who had strong power with ye King offered to get him made an Earl and as I heard Knight of y^e Garter if he would but court a little y^e then Favorite y^e Earl of Sumersett which he said he could not do and that he had more honour by being a Barron then his Estate could becoming a nobleman support.

He moved not to be a Privy Councillor of England King James knowing well his abillities his well deservings and his discreet and honorable manage of his negotiations in his Embassage in Germany did it of himself.

He was no very good Orator but had a singular good expression with his pen sublime and succinct according to y^e subject whereof he wrote and y^e Person to whom his Lett^{rs} to King James were so acceptable as he gave him encouragm^t and command to write often to him and once when y^e King received a Lett^r from him he gave it to his ffavorite Sumersett bidding him learn it without book saying he had not received such a Lett^r since he was King of England and y^e secretary of State y^e Earle of Salisbury and Lords of y^e Councell would give his lines high praise he was a great statesman and good comon wealths man and as knowing able a souldier as any of our nation in those times; he was a carefull performer of his mannagm^{ts} and keeper of his word no man knew his composition and disposition better than myself Therefore I may with confidence and truth say this that he was a man of great honour Piety prudence justice bounty and valour very hospitable charitable affable and excellent good company within and without doors being a Lover of all Civill becoming sports games and recreations.

His Estate was all of his own acquisition by fair purchase only y^e King gave him S^r Cahier O'Doghertyes County it being by his rebellion Escheat to y^e Crown and he with his adherents being cutt off by y^e Industry and activity of my Lord Chichester that land was then worth about 1000^{li} per Ann: within those times of Largis and in that Kingdom and at y^e furthest point north was no great gift or reward from a King to a Subject that had been 12 years his Vice Roy and so well a Deserver

His Estate being about 8000^{li} per Ann: he left to his good Brother S^r Edward Chichester who also inherited his honour of Barron of Belfast and in short time after was made Viscount of Carrickfergus and Governor of that Town and Country and 3 or 4 years before his death his Son was made by King Charles Earl of Dunmagall in y^e north of Ulster in which County he hath 20 miles of Land at Least he was bred with and by his noble uncle Arthur Lord Chichester and in much is a good copy of that originall upon the grand horrid Rebellion in Ireland he advanc^t at his own charge a Regm^t of horse and a Regm^t of ffoot for y^e service of the King and did very acceptable service he being a gallant gentleman couragious stedly Just and noble hearted

With the first Lord Chichester that man of great honour and noble Endowm^{ts} I had from my coming young from School my Education and by him y^e foundation of my Advancem^{ts} and fortune acquired in Ireland

A Perspective View of Belfast from Cromac's Mills

THE INCORPORATION OF THE BOROUGH.

From the commencement of the reign of King James I. it was confidently expected that a Parliament would have been convened in Ireland. The last was held in 1587 by Sir John Perrott, Sir Arthur Chichester's father-in-law. Six years elapsed before the King, anxious to get a Parliamentary recognition of the Ulster Plantation, and to introduce a large scheme of general legislation, sent over the clerk of the Commons to consult with the Lord Deputy Chichester on the method of procedure. In the Chichester papers, preserved in the Carte collection at the Bodleian Library, is the original Journal of the Parliament of 1587, procured no doubt to serve as a precedent for that of 1613. A large number of new boroughs were incorporated principally for the purpose of returning members to this parliament. By a list dated 1st April, 1613 (Calendar S.P. Ireland, 1611-14), it appears that there were:—Cities and towns that are counties, 9; Shires sending Knights to Parliament, 33; Old Boroughs, 31; New boroughs, 38; The University of Dublin, 1; total, 112. To this return Chichester has added in his own hand Catherlagh (Carlow), making the number 113, returning in all 226 members. In August, 1614, the representatives of Tallagh, Lismore, Clonakilly, Carlow, Fethard, Agher, Belfast, and Charlemont, were forbidden by the King to sit in this parliament. The subjoined list of the Irish boroughs incorporated by King James I. has been extracted from the appendices to the Report on Irish Municipal Corporations, 1835, with the purpose of showing the variety of titles and the frequent use of that of Sovereign. By the kindness of the librarian of the Bodleian Library, the editor is able to give the following letter [Carte papers 62, fol. 233] by an unknown official, which shows that considerable licence was allowed in these details.

"I set downe the Name of Sovereigne upon the occatyon of the Rt. hon^{ble} the Ld. Deputyes Lettres mentyoning the same name, as also y^e name of Provost, &c wishyng us to take y^e choyce: w^{ch} If now my L^d styck at, yee may putt in the warrants the Name of Burgo mayster or Borrough master. I hope yee have Inserted the name of Baptist Hazell instead of Rycharde Tyrer: And so I pray set yt onward wth such convenyent expedytyon as other the lyke goe on."

(Baptist Hazell was a burgess of Ballinakill for which a fiant of incorporation was drawn 13 Nov. 1612).

As the Charter of James I. is given in extenso (p. 172), a few words of explanation will suffice as to the constitution of the borough. It was entitled, The Sovereign, Free Burgesses, and Commonalty of the borough of Belfast, and consisted of one Sovereign one Lord of the castle, one constable of the castle, twelve other free Burgesses, and Freemen unlimited in number. Six freemen only were known to exist in 1833. A power to have a Merchant Hall was granted by the Charter. This seems to have been acted on, as there are many entries of persons admitted "Merchants of the Staple."

The Sovereign was elected on the feast of St. John the Baptist, the 24th of June, from a leet of 3 names of free burgesses presented to the Sovereign and burgesses then assembled by the Lord of the castle, who was a member of the corporation by tenure of the castle of Belfast.

The charter also granted that all the inhabitants within the borough should be by force thereof freemen. These were represented in early times by a Grand Jury selected from themselves, which, together with the Sovereign and free burgesses, assessed upon the town people sums of money for municipal purposes. Admission was obtained by becoming a "free commoner," a gratuity being usually paid the Corporation. The power of admission seems to have rested with the Sovereign as the chief officer of the Corporation.

p. 1.—Payment of Tongues.

The Sovereign of Belfast had but few perquisites of office in comparison, for instance, with the Mayor of Carrickfergus, who claimed the following amongst others :—"In many of the old leases of this place, the tenants were bound to furnish yearly a certain number of fat hens or capons to the Mayor each Christmas, or a specified sum of money in lieu. The owner of the West Mills was also bound to grind all such grain as shall be spent from time to time in the Mayor's house, toll free. As clerk of the market he had also the tongues of all bullocks or cows killed on Fridays, whose flesh was sold in the market on Saturdays" (McSkimin). In 1601 it was enacted "that the maior of the Town for the time being shall have towards his Housekeeping the sum of twenty pounds stg per ann, and the third part of her Majesty's Customs and the petty Custom usually belonging to the Town—to the end that no Maior of this Towne hereafter for the time being shall sell either Wine Ale or Aqua Vitae or others either at his Table or in his premises upon forfeiture of his stipend of 20^{li}—payment of the stipend—is to be collected in manner and form following viz. upon every Ton of ffrench Wine four shillings ster Upon every Ton of Spanish Wine six shillings ster, the Ton unloden at the Key of Carrickfergus either by Town or private Bargain." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.) Amongst the Duties and perquisites anciently belonging to the Sovereign of Kinsale 1657 are noted—"Imp. Due and payable out of the towne stock or Treasury, 13li. 6s. 8d. 1t. Out of every beefe slaughtered within the towne or liberties except for burgesses or freemen 3d. 1t. From every master butcher being a master of a family one stone of tallow about Christmas. 1t. The Sovereigne is to receive every Royal Fish that is taken in the harbour or precincts thereof, for which he is to pay 12d for each to the taker. 1t. He is to have the best fish or best sprapp of fish out of any boat paying for same 2d. 1t. Out of every vessel of pears or apples, for liberty of the market 500." (Town Book of Kinsale.)

p. 2. Jo: Vesey.

First Sovereign, and an original leaseholder in the borough.

p. 2. Jo: Ayshe.

The history of the ancient family of Ash, who came from the Isle of Thanet to Ireland in Elizabeth's reign—Thomas Ash, the father of John Ash, being knighted by Sir George Carew in 1603—has been lately published for private circulation, under the able editorship of Rev. E. T. Martin, Dundonald.

p. 2. Henry Upton.

A kinsman of Lord Chichester, and married to a daughter of Sir Hugh Clotworthy. Humphrey Norton, one of the original burgesses of Belfast, settled at Templepatrick, and, incensed at the marriage of his daughter to a Sergeant O'Linn, sold his estate to Captain Henry Upton, who became the founder of the family now ennobled by the title of Viscount Templetown. The wife of Arthur Upton, M.P. for Carrick 1761, introduced crayfish to the Sixmilewater, where they are now plentiful.

p. 2. Walterhouse Crimble.

More properly Waterhouse Crymble, belonged to a family said to have come to Ireland with Sir Edward Waterhouse, secretary to Sir Henry Sidney. Waterhouse settled in Carrickfergus its M.P. in 1585. His account for repairs at the "Pallace," afterwards Lord Chichester's "Joymount," is given in an article on that building. (Ulster Journal of Archaeology, vol. vii.) His only child married Roger Crymble, father of the subject of this note. He was one of the first burgesses, and a chief mourner in 1636 at Viscount Montgomery's funeral, Comptroller of Customs at Donaghadee about 1649.

p. 7. Carew Harte.

He was a sheriff of Carrickfergus in 1613. His confession at death, acknowledging his guilt in promising to marry Jane Varey after his wife's death, but denying that he had poisoned her, dated at Carrickfergus 11th April, 1623, is noted. (Cal. S.P.I. 1615-25.)

p. 3. Absent from Church.

At a Court of the Corporation of Carrickfergus, 4th Sept. 1574, in "le Town House de Knockfergus," the following curious order was passed—"That Whereas Francis Turner did most slanderously use these unreverent Words following, Viz. : Parson Davye (sic) made a Sermon to his parishoners & cried thrice (soho) which he sayed did signify I have found and so sayed he a sort of knaves I have found you, and so I will leave you and so will I sell my House and go my Ways, for the punishment whereof it was ordered that the said Francis shall openly before the Mayor and Aldermen of this Town Say these Words upon his Knee Kneeling Viz. Mr. Maior and the rest of the Aldermen I have slandered your Worships and for the same I ask God and your Worships all forgiveness most heartily and also that the said Francis, shall be committed to the Marshalls Ward and there remain in Bolts so long as it shall please the Mayor and General." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.)

p. 5. To sell ale.

As far back as 3rd Feby. 1574—"It was ordered and agreed by the Mayor and the rest of his Brethren that whereas ill measures of Ale was sold within this Town to the great annoyance of the poor and displeasing of God that the said fault should be corrected with punishment according, that is to say for the first fault committed in ill measure by any Man to pay therefore 12^d st^{rs} and the Ale so complained of, and the second time that any man should therein offend 5^s st^{rs} and the Ale complained of, and the third time the whole brewing or the value thereof, the one half of the said forfeits so taken to belong to the Mayor for the time being and the other half thereof to appertain to his Substitute appointed under him which is appointed under him to Seal the said Cannes and look to the measures thereof. The twenty second day of this month Ralph Crawly for breaking of Crein Duff his head being Sergeant was by the Mayor & the Whole Court condemned to payment of 20^s st^{rs} to the Town & the Bloodshed to the Sheriffs." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.)

p. 6. Apprehending anie felons Rouges woodkernes or Craytes.

The Carrickfergus Records, under date 8th June, 1624, note this entry—"It was likewise ordered condescended and agreed that Richd Brooke shall have as stipend from this Town for the banishing and driving out of all strong Beggars and other idle and loitering persons both out of the Town and Country the sum of thirty shillings currant money of and in England." A side note adds, "This was likewise the same day with a generall consent also cancelled."

Amongst the Acts propounded for Ireland in 1611 is one against all such as, calling themselves gentlemen, horsemen, or kerne, live loosely and freely, without any certain means or trade of life, as also against rhymer, gamesters, stokeaghes, vagabonds, and beggars. In the same list are acts for the destruction of wolves and sowing flax for making linen cloth. (Carew MSS.) By woodkerne are meant the native Irish soldiery, then lingering in such neighbouring fastnesses as the woods of Kilwarlin and the Glynns. John Derrick, in his remarkable rhymed work entitled "The Image of Ireland with a discoverie of Wood Karne wherein is most lively expressed the nature and qualitie of the saied wilde Irish Wood Karne, their notable aptnesse celeritie &c. 1581," gives twelve woodcut illustrations of the Irish wood kerne. Only one perfect copy of the original edition is known. Two of these illustrations are of especial interest, as they portray the Lord Deputy Sidney and his retinue in the North, the background of wooded hills being the first attempt in all likelihood to depict the Belfast mountains. In the eleventh print Rory Oge is shown as a wild Irish kerne shrouded in his mantle in the midst of a desolate wood. From his lips proceed the words, "Ve mihi misere," to which certain prowling wolves make answer, "Ve atque dolor." As a specimen of the author's doggerel these lines are given—

"Their shirtes be very straunge not reachyng paste the thie :
With pleates on pleates thei pleated are as thick as pleates maie lye
Whose sleeves hang trailing downe almost unto the shoe :
And with a Mantell commonlie the Irish Karne doe go.
Now some emongst the reste doe use another weede :
A coate I meane of strange device which fancie first did breede."

Creaght originally meant wattle or basket work. "The Ulster Irish were a pastoral people. In Fermanagh there was neither town or civil habitation. The chiefs dwelt some of them in clay houses ; others of them, who followed creaghting' or running up and down the country with their cattle, dwelt, like their followers, in booths made of boughs coated with long strips of green turf, instead of canvas run up in a few minutes, for such are the dwellings of the very lords amongst them." p. 9. Henry Le 'Squire

Henry Le Squire* by his will devised his property at Six Mile Water, County Antrim, to his brother George Squire of Londonderry, with power of appointment among his children. George conveyed the property to his son William, who served as Sheriff of Londonderry in 1677, and died Mayor of Londonderry in 1692. His brother was Captain Gervaise Squire, who played such a prominent part in the defence of Derry in 1688 (for an account of whom see Graham's History of the Siege of Derry, and his Ireland Preserved, also Hempton's History of the Siege). William was succeeded by his son Alexander, who served as Sheriff of Londonderry in 1709 and in 1713; elected Mayor of the City in 1718 and again in 1721. He died in 1725, and was succeeded by his only surviving son, James Squire of Rosculbin, Co. Fermanagh, and Manorcunningham, Co. Donegal, who died in 1779. His only surviving son William died in 1806, having issue who survived infancy one son, William, who died in 1877, and one daughter, Anne, married to her cousin-german, James Chittick, of Manorcunningham, and had issue three sons and two daughters, of whom alone William Gervaise and Erminda had issue.

William Gervaise Chittick, who resides at East Orange, New Jersey, U.S.A., married the eldest daughter of Alexander Lindsay, J.P., of Lisnacieve House, Co. Tyrone, Alderman of Londonderry, and Mayor in 1847, 1848, 1849, 1863, 1864. He has by her surviving issue—1, William Gervaise; 2, James; 3, Alice Gertrude. Erminda married the Rev. Alexander Rentoul, M.D., D.D., of Errity House, Manorcunningham, Co. Donegal, and now resides at The Lodge, Cliftonville. Her eldest son is Mr. James Alexander Rentoul, LL.D., Barrister-at-Law, County Councillor of London, and M.P. for County Down East.

p. 9. G. B. Gowen Bolby

The letters G. B. precede the name in the original, and form the trade mark of Bolby or Boultyb. Sometimes it occurs between the names, as at p. 15—John IH Haddocke. Hugh Doake was erroneously considered unable to write, from his constant use of his mark ID; he signs in full sometimes.

* Descended from the Squires of Essex; arms, three swans' heads, couped at the neck, or; crest, an elephant's head, ve. ad arg. ducally gorged. The name spelled variously—Le Squire, Squier, and Squire.

The reduced fac-simile of this page gives a good idea of the appearance of the earlier portions of the original MS. The first signature is that of Lord Edward Chichester, brother of Lord Arthur Chichester, and father of the first Earl of Donegall.

p. 11. A Rate made

This entry is for the first time properly rendered. By mistaking the definite for the indefinite article before Town Hall, Benn was led into the error of supposing that the rate was struck to pay for its erection, whereas it had been in use probably soon after the incorporation of the Borough, and was in fitting up to serve as the Assize Courts next year. Joy evidently read the contracted form of "partitions" as prison, and notes under 1639, "The Corporation fitted up a Courthouse with Bench and Bar, and town prison, and for this purpose an applotment was made on the inhabitants, but only 46 were found able to pay this tax. In the following year the Assizes were held in Belfast." (Joy's MS.) In the Charter to Carrickfergus granted by James I. ground for a gaol to be used for Co. Antrim is exempted. The Judges of Assize tried unsuccessfully in 1613 to remove their courts to the town of Antrim, but were prevented by Lord Deputy Chichester. Sir Robert Adair twice petitioned Queen Anne to make Ballymena the assize town, but was defeated by the Corporation of Carrickfergus. Other attempts also proved abortive, and it was not till 1850 that Belfast was adopted. The subjoined is from the Carrickfergus Records MSS. "The Grand Jury of the Co Antrim, 13th Aug 1666, passed a presentment empowering Sir George Rawdon, Robert Colville, Michael Harrison, Francis Stafford, and Thaddy O'Hara, to conclude an agreement with the Corporation of Carrick for the sum of seventy pounds per ann. to take upon them the rare charge and pains of repairing and keeping in repair the Session House and Gaol, with the tenements and Rooms thereunto appertaining, and belonging to the County of Antrim." The agreement is a lengthy document; one of the clauses reads, "Whereas the said Sessions House and Gaol are now furnished with Table, Cushions, Carpets, Seats, four long Iron Bolts and twelve Rings or Yokes, Thirty pair of double Iron Bolts and Shackles, four pair of Handcuffs, four Padlocks, Six Horse Locks and three Plate Locks, Forty Rivets of Iron for Bolts, one pair of Stocks, one Iron Grate with a Chain and two great Bolts of Iron at the Door of the said Gaol. The Mayor Burgesses and Commonalty bind themselves if any of the above defray perish or be lost to supply the defect thereof with other utensils and materials of equal value goodness and strength." Some of these fetters and locks are in all probability amongst the large collection from Carrickfergus Gaol presented to the Belfast Museum by the late Dr. James Moore, R.H.A.

p. 17. The charge of Candles for the Army

Additional charges are mentioned at p. 19, with a list of those assessed. This was the army thus referred to in Adair's Narrative. "Strafford, by the help of four subsidies from the Parliament in Ireland, raised an army of Irish, and some profane and ignorant of the British, of 8,000 foot and 1,000 horse, and sent them down hither to the North (in order to the invading of Scotland) where the Earl of Antrim had engaged to get them supported. They stayed a considerable time quartered in this country, much oppressing it, and were, both for design and carriage amongst the people, called the Black Band." Benn's

History contains no mention of any part of the army being stationed in Belfast, although this is evident from the list of the officers made freemen in the same year, including Sir Charles Coote, Sir James Dillon, and other distinguished men. Carrickfergus has hitherto been considered the only place they occupied, and from it as head quarters the soldiers were marched to Larne, and exercised in throwing up earthworks at the Curran, of which traces exist close to the present Oldfleet Hotel. As the square earthen redoubt known as Fort William was almost certainly non-existent in Essex's time, and corresponds in plan with another fort having similar small bastions at the four angles to receive cannon, situated immediately under the Cavehill, and called in 1659 the "ditch of Ballyaghagan," there seems a strong probability that these works with that of the Milewater were thrown up to form a continuous line of defence on the North side of the town against any sudden attack of the Scotch from that quarter. McSkimin's MS. notes under 1641—"On the breaking out of the rebellion the Kings forces in Ireland amounted to only 2297 foot, and 943, horse and they were greatly despersed."

p. 17. For ye Bridge at ye Milewater

Mr. John Thompson, City Assessor, Mount Collyer, upon whose property the old bridge till recently stood, has kindly supplied the material for the present note and illustration. The arch of the bridge was so damaged that its original form could not be determined, but was probably semicircular, as the "crown" was much above the ordinary level of the roadway. When the traffic was diverted by the making of the present York Street and the subsequent Cavehill Railway, cottages were built at the north side of the bridge, so as to effectually close up the ancient passage. Adjacent to the north-west side of the bridge, which was evidently erected to allow military stores and artillery to proceed without hindrance between Belfast and Carrickfergus, where Strafford's army lay in quarters, was placed the fort or block-house. This curious little structure had been completely forgotten in recent years; no historian mentions it. It was circular in shape, with narrow arched apertures for musketry, as shown on the plan. The roof was of domical form, and, like the contemporary bridge, the whole was executed in brickwork, the bricks being about 8 inches long by 2½ inches thick. The slits were placed at a height of four feet, and were splayed inwards, so as to allow space for aiming. Not far from this Mr. Thompson found a human skull, in a well-made wooden box, greatly decayed. This probably dated from 1798, when the heads of some of Dr. W. H. Drummond's friends were spiked on the old Market-house. He had a school at Mount Collyer about that time, and wrote here his poems of "Trafalgar" and the "Giant's Causeway." It may be of interest to add that the moschatel (Adoxa Moschatellina) is recorded by Templeton as growing at the Milewater, its only habitat in Ireland.

p. 17. Disordered house

"It was ordered and agreed by the whole Court the twenty-ninth day of this month (Oct. 1574) that all manner of Scolds which shall be openly detected of Scolding or evil Words in Manner of Scolding and for the same shall be condemned before the Mayor and his Brethren shall be drawn at the Stern of a Boat in the water from the end of the Weare round About the Queen's Majesty's Castle in manner of Ducking and after when a cage shall be made the party so condemned for a Scold shall be therein punished at the discretion of the Mayor." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.)

Mr. John Coates, J.P., late secretary of Antrim Grand Jury, informs the editor that he had in his possession till recently a gag for the mouth which belonged to the Carrickfergus Gaol. From his description it was probably a scold's bridle.

Ancient ironworks, showing a trip hammer.

p. 19. char Coales

The manufacture of charcoal for the ironworks formerly situated at Strandmillis, Old Forge, Magheralin, and other thickly wooded districts, was very extensive. In the scarce tract entitled A true relation of several Acts, Passages, done, undertaken, &c., by Captain Robert Lawson, London, 1643, is the following reference to his father-in-law's (Robert Barr) ironworks at Strandmillis, which were destroyed at that time, traces of which still exist adjoining the first lock of the Lagan Navigation—"The sow-iron unwrought to the quantity of 2,000l. value beside much iron ore, and 1,000 tons of square timber, most burned by the soldiers, 1,000 loads of charcoals burned by the enemy at forge furnace, and in the woods, with three corn mills, and many houses burned, and land laid waste, the land and mills being worth 150l. per annum." From a copy of Dr. Gerald Boate's Ireland's Naturall History, 1652, which has the autograph and motto of John Gorges, Governor of Maine, showing the wide circulation of this valuable work at the time, the following description of these Irish ironworks is taken:—"At the end of a great Barn standeth a huge Furnace, being of the height of a pike and a half or more, and foursquare in figure, but after the manner of a Mault-kiln, that is, narrow below, and by degrees growing wider towards the top, so as the compass of the mouth or the top is of many fathoms. These ovens are not kindled with wood, nor with sea-cole, but merely with char-coal, whereof they consume a huge quantity. For the Furnace being once kindled, is never suffered to go out, but is continually kept a burning from the one end of the year to the other. And the proportion of the coals to the Oare is very great: For the Mine would not melt without an exceeding hot fire; the which that it may be the more quick and violent, it is continually blown day and night without ceasing by two Vast pair of bellows, the which rest upon main peeces of timber, and with their pipes placed into one of the sides of the Furnace are perpetually kept in action by the meanes of the great wheel which being driven about by a little brook or water-course maketh them rise and fall by turns. There is another and lesser sort of Iron works, much different from the former: For instead of a Furnace they use a Hearth therein, altogether of the fashion of a Smith's Hearth, whereon the Oare being layd in a great heap, it is covered over with abundance of Charcoal, the which being kindled is continually blown by Bellows that are moved by wheeles and water courses, in the same manner as in the other works." Such no doubt were Old and New Forge on the Lagan. At Randalstown, once called Iron Works, were probably made the nails taken from ancient oak beams in Antrim Castle, and now in the Editor's possession. They are of singular toughness, resembling the best Swedish iron, and forged with such hammers as Boate describes, "being huge big ones, and never ceasing from knocking day nor night."

p. 19. For Maces

Benn read "Majesty's" for "maces," and expresses surprise at the cost incurred in such a time for carving his Majesty's arms on the Town Hall. The mace figured on p. 18 is that bequeathed by Le Squire to the Corporation, and used by him as seneschal of the Manor Court. His sergeant's gold ring was bequeathed to Robert Foster. The well-known expert in all such subjects, Mr.

Robert Day, J.P., F.S.A., M.R.I.A., kindly contributes the following description of the Corporation maces :—

"At the reception given by Dr. John Evans, President of the Society of Antiquaries, London, in 1888, there were no less than 130 maces which had been lent for exhibition by the several Mayors and Corporations in the United Kingdom. These were described by Mr. St. John Hope, F.S.A., who was enabled to point out, from their various shapes, the gradual evolution and change of form from the more ancient war-mace. According to the accepted theory, the lower end of a war-mace was first fashioned into a button to receive the Royal Arms. Then the mace was turned upside down, and the flanges were converted into ornaments, and afterwards gradually disappeared. The flanges were finally replaced by a button or boss to counterbalance the weight of the mace-head, which in the meantime had been growing in size.

This occurs in the two city maces of Belfast which I had, through the courtesy of the Town Clerk, Mr. Black, the privilege of examining. The smaller mace terminates at the grip end with a boss, quite plain, and without any engraving of the Corporate arms, which might have been looked for upon its flat, seal-shaped end. The larger mace terminates in a conical foot-knop, chased with lozenges between intersecting bands. (See p. 231.) This larger mace is a fine example of the early Stuart period; it measures seventeen and a-half inches in length; it has a central knop upon the shaft, and three scroll brackets that support the head, which is in four arched compartments, that are divided one from the other by female term figures with plumed head-gear. These spaces have each the emblems of the Rose, Thistle, Harp, and Fleur-de-lys royally crowned. Above these is an ornamented fillet, which is surmounted by an open-work engrailed ball-top coronet. The head is engraved with the Stuart arms and the letters C.R. It is without hall-mark, but in a maker's stamp are the letters S.G. The smaller mace measures eight inches in length; it has a perfectly plain and undecorated shaft, with a knop under the head, which is also plain. The coronet exhibits marks of having been entirely broken off, and the head is engraved with the crowned arms of England, but without any supporters. At either side of the crown are the initials of the King, and, below, the date 1639. There is no hall-mark, but in a circular stamp the diphthong Æ between six annulets. This peculiar stamp does not occur in the London makers' list, and, so far as I can ascertain, is unknown. When no hall-mark occurs upon Irish plate of the seventeenth century, we may safely infer that it is of local manufacture. Mr. Young has examined the Town Book, and finds among the list of freemen ante 1700—'Andrew McCulloch Goldsmith 19 January 1660;' 'W^m Barnett 19 October 1671;' 'Thomas m^cCune 22nd Janry., 1679.' None of these initials, I regret to say, correspond with those upon the maces; but I am yet inclined to think that they were made, if not in Belfast, in some of the towns of the Pale in Ulster, and I would suggest an examination of the church plate in the diocese of Down, Connor, and Dromore, for the purpose of possibly identifying the initials of these three Belfast goldsmiths with the maker's stamp, which will probably be found upon examples of ecclesiastical plate so preserved. When we have the most conclusive evidence that in the last half of the seventeenth century the manufacture of silver plate existed in Cork, Bandon, and Youghal, in the province of Munster, there is no reason why the same industry should not have flourished in the walled towns of Ulster."

p. 19. Armes and the Towne Seale for the Towne

The following exhaustive note on the subject has been kindly supplied by Mr. John Vinycomb, F.R.S.A.I. :—

FROM an early period in the history of the Borough a Town Seal appears to have been one of the essentials of its corporate existence. In 1612, Sir Arthur Chester, who may truly be called the founder of the town, was created Baron of Belfast; and on the 27th April, 1613, the Town was constituted a Corporation by Charter of King James I., to consist of a Sovereign, or chief magistrate, and twelve Burgesses, and Commonalty. In this Charter, which recites the corporate birth of the town, it is stated they may have "one Comon seale in such forme and as shall seem best unto them" (page 177). What may have been the special device upon this Seal cannot now be determined, but in the Town Book, under date 1640, we find an entry authorising the payment for what appears to be the insignia of office—"FOR MACES ARMES AND THE TOWNE SEALE FOR THE TOWNE 26li." The Seal here referred to is mentioned in the will of Henry Le Squire, dated 1643—"ITEM:—I give to the Corporation of Belfast the remainder due upon an account of my disbursements for their Maces, Seale and Coat of Armes, and will that the Mace I have be delivered to the Sufferane for the Townes use." "Master Le Squire" was Sovereign of the town in 1635-36 & 39, and was one of the Englishmen who followed the fortunes of the Lord Deputy to Ireland, and settled in Belfast. He was then agent and seneschal to the Lord Edward Chichester.

The Le Squire Seal, until recently almost forgotten, remained the only authoritative source of information as to the correctness of the Town Arms; various inaccuracies, it was believed, had crept into the Town Seal of 1842. Mr. George Benn, therefore, in preparing his History of Belfast (1877), endeavoured to obtain from Ulster's office information as to what really were the Arms of the Town. The answer returned was—"There is no record in this office when Arms were granted to Belfast. In a MS. book the following Arms appear in the handwriting of the late Sir William Betham, Ulster:—Per fess argent and azure; in chief a pile vair, on a canton of the second, a tower of the first: in base a ship with sails set, also of the first. Crest, a sea-horse proper. Supporters—dexter, a wolf rampant proper; sinister, a sea-horse proper." Sir W. Betham must have had an imperfect copy of the Arms before him when he wrote, as there are palpable inaccuracies in his blazon. The blue canton charged with a tower should be "on a canton gules (red), a bell argent." The wolf should be "ducally gorged and chained or."

From various entries in the old Town Book it would almost appear as if the arms upon the old Town Seal had been derived from the properly constituted authority. The composition is the work of a skilled and practised herald, and not that of an amateur. That no entry can be found in the books in Ulster's office may be accounted for by the disorganised condition of the records of the office of arms during the troublous times of James II., when "Athlone," pursuing, followed his deposed Sovereign to St. Germain's, carrying with him many of the books of records, some of which have since found their way to the British Museum, Trinity College, Dublin, and elsewhere. It is not unlikely that in one of these tomes the entry relating to the arms of Belfast may be found.

The fine old Corporate Seal of the Town, which is still in existence (an impression of it appears embossed upon the title-page), is of silver set in a wooden handle: it was in use from Le Squire's time down to the extinction of the old Corporation in 1842, and remains in the possession of an old resident family—Lewis of Nettlefield—descended from one of the Sovereigns of Belfast. It is in very fair preservation, and, though somewhat worn, is in good heraldic character, much superior in this respect to that which superseded it. The Coat of Arms on this Seal reappears, with all its peculiarity of detail, somewhat exaggerated, upon the Map of Belfast, A.D. 1790, a fac-simile of which is in Benn's History (1877).

It will be seen that the Arms upon this Seal, making allowance for the quaintness of the drawing, are precisely the same—heraldically—as those now in use, with the exception of the mural coronet, added by Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King of Arms, in his recent grant.

Trade Token of John Steward, 1656.

It is a mistake to suppose, as many have done, that the Arms of Belfast were false heraldry. The Bell on the Shield has no reference whatever to the known derivation of the name of the town—Beul-firste, The Mouth of the Ford—but is an instance of what is termed canting or allusive arms. This manner of playing upon words of similar sound was a prevailing fashion in the heraldry of the time, and to a large extent still continues, of which numberless instances can be given of all periods. The Bell appears upon the earliest Belfast trade tokens of 1656, and continued the most frequent device, together with the ship, used by the early Belfast merchants.

A wolf gorged and chained also appears upon a token or coin of Hugh Magarraha, dated 1736; showing clearly that the well-known symbols which form the constituent parts of the Town Arms were taken by the traders of the town as the most appropriate they could devise for their purpose. Two wolves, similarly gorged and chained as that on Magarraha's token, are the supporters of the Chichesters; one such had been adopted as the dexter supporter of the Belfast Shield, probably in honour of the noble patron of the town; while for the sinister supporter and crest, the symbolic creature, the Sea-horse, had been chosen, with true prophetic spirit, to indicate the maritime importance and fast progress of the rising town and port; the steeds of Neptune are favourite subjects in ancient poetry and art: many of the maritime states of Greece adopted the sea-horse as their monetary symbol, in allusion to the fleetness of their vessels. The ship in full sail in the base of the Shield has exactly the same significance, and for use upon tokens was a more suitable emblem than the sea-horse, hence its frequent use. The very limited space available upon small coins rendered it impossible that any but the simplest and best understood emblems could be admitted, especially as no rigid heraldic law governed these matters; this will satisfactorily account for the entire coat of arms not appearing on any of the tokens. One of the charges on the Shield, V shape, is, in heraldic parlance, a pile vair. The term "pile" has reference to the piles or stakes used to form entrenched camps, while "vair" is a parti-coloured fur used for lining the mantles of noble and official personages of high rank in the middle ages; it is taken from a species of squirrel, bluish-grey on the back and white on the belly, and called in Latin varrus on that account.

Reverse of Trade Token of Hugh Magarraha, 1736.

"Ferrars his Tabard with rich verry spread,
Well known in many a warlike match before."—DRAYTON'S Barons' Wars.

"A chief vair" forms part of the Chichester Shield, and suggests the source of the adoption of the tincture on the pile. The chained wolf supporter also seems to have been adopted from the Chichester arms, while the motto may have been intended to express the sense of gratitude entertained by the Sovereign and Burgesses towards the founder and benefactor of the young Borough.

On the extinction of the old Corporation in 1842, a new brass Seal was substituted for the old one, of the same size and oval shape. It is very well engraved in modern style. Wings are, however, added to the sea-horse crest and supporters. This new feature has misled many persons, and appears frequently in subsequent representations. This affords a clue to the approximate date of the embroidered cushion in the possession of the Corporation, which has the sea-horse "winged," being evidently modelled on the design upon this Seal.

Old Arms used on the heading of the Belfast News-Letter, adapted from the Seal of 1842, kindly lent by the proprietors.

When the Town Council began to issue bonds in 1874 in connection with the purchase of the Gasworks, the large numbers to be impressed with the Corporate Seal necessitated the adoption of some speedier means of stamping; a steel die and embossing press superseded the old method of scaling on wafers. The design of the Seal, however, remained the same as that of 1842, but a garter was added bearing the words "Belfast Borough Corporate Seal." When Belfast was, by Royal Charter, created a City in 1888, the same Seal was used, changing only "Borough" to "City." In August, 1890, a grant (or confirmation) of Arms was obtained from Sir Bernard Burke, Ulster King of Arms, and a new and larger Corporate Seal was designed in accordance therewith, and executed by Messrs. Marcus Ward & Co., Limited, and is the one now in use. It is in every respect an admirable example of what a Corporate Seal should be. A representation of it will be found on back of the title-page.

ARMS OF THE CITY (according to the grant of 1890).—Per Fess argent and azure, in chief, a pile vair, and on a canton gules, a bell argent; in base, a ship with sails set argent, on waves of the sea, proper. Supporters—dexter, a wolf proper, ducally gorged and chained, or; sinister, a sea-horse gorged with a mural crown, proper. Crest—a sea-horse gorged with a mural crown, proper. Motto—PRO TANTO QUID RETRIBUAMUS.

The motto may be freely translated as a question, thus—“What return shall we make for so much?”

In the Latin Vulgate, Psalm cxv. 12, which corresponds to Psalm cxvi. 12 of the authorised version, we read—“QUID RETRIBUAM DOMINO, PRO OMNIBUS QUÆ RETRIBUIT MIHI?” which in the authorised version stands—“What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?” The prayer-book version (Psalm cxvi. 11) renders it—“What reward shall I give unto the Lord: for all the benefits that He hath done unto me?” The motto of the Belfast Arms in all probability was suggested by the above passage.

p. 20. fire and candle-light for the severall Guards

On the night of Saturday, 23rd Oct., 1641, the news of the outbreak of the Rebellion reached the Governor of Carrickfergus, Col. Arthur Chichester, who immediately apprised his father, Lord Edward Chichester, at Belfast. On Thursday, 28th October, a letter sent by him reached the King at Edinburgh. Little time was lost by the Lord of the Castle in providing means for the defence of the town. On 6th December a bond was drawn up empowering James Edmondstone, of Broadisland, to procure arms in Scotland, as the following extract shows:—“We, Edward Viscount Chichester, of Carrickfergus, Captane Arthur Chichester, eldest sone and air apparent of the said Edvard, Sir Arthur Tyringham, Knight, one of his majesties most honorable privie counsell for the Kingdom of Ireland, and Arthur Hill of Killwarlen in the countie of Downe, Esquyre, have sent and imploied our trusty and weil beloved friend, James Edmonstone of Brodeyland in the countie of Antrim, Esquyre, to the cite of Edinburgh, in the Kingdome of Scotland, or to any other part of the said kingdome, to bargane and buy for our use these arms following, that is to say, one thousand muskets with baneliers [cartridge boxes] two thousand swordis, five hundred and fourtie pickis, fyve hundreth horsemen's peicks with snaphouses [a kind of cavalry firelock] or for want of such, fyve hundreth carbynes, and thrie field peices of thrie or fore pound bullet.” (Quoted by Reid.) With these and other assistance the Belfast district was gallantly held till the arrival of the Scotch under General Robert Monro, on 15th April 1642, as described by an eye-witness, the original of Scott's Dugald Dalgetty.

Owen Roe O'Neill.

(Sir James Turner's Memoirs.) General Robert Monro had seen much service in Flanders and under Gustavus Adolphus, of which he gave an account entitled, Monro's Expedition with the worthy Scots Regiment called MacKey's Regiment.

He made several predatory expeditions against the Irish, but was completely defeated at Benburb by the celebrated Owen Roe O'Neill. His exactions in Belfast are shown by the constant cesses entered down to the end of 1645. Scoutbush, two miles from Carrickfergus, was his favourite residence at the time. He married the widow of the second Viscount Montgomery, and was living in 1680.

Sir James Turner says—"The officers of this our Scots armie in Ireland finding themselves ill payd, and which was worse, not knowing in the time of the civill warre who should be their paymasters, and reflecting on the successfull issue of the Nationale Covenant of Scotland, bethought themselves of making one also; but they were wise enough to give it ane other name, and therefore christened it a Mutual Assurance; wherby upon the matter they made themselves independent of any except these who would be their actual and reall paymasters, with whom, for anything I know, they met not the whole time of the warre. . . . We fingered but litle moneys, and meale so sparinglie as seldom we could allow our sogers above a pound a day." This is borne out by a Commonwealth tract in the Editor's possession entitled A Full Relation of the Late Expedition of the Right Honourable the Lord Monroe, London 1644, in which it says, "All our Souldiers of the army carried ten daies victuals in Oatemeale upon their backs, besides their Armes; and ten daies more was carried upon baggage horses; more we could not carry, nor other shift we could not make, for want of carriage horses, and other accomodations for a march; and all this twenty daies victuals for the Souldiers did not exceed 24 pound weight of Oatemeale without any other supply of meat or drink but Water."

p. 22. Bulworke att the Strande

By reference to the map of Belfast about this period, on p. 80, it will be observed that the place where the High Street river falls into the Lagan was undefended on the Carrickfergus side. It was probably here that the Bulwark was erected. As the ford across the Lagan almost certainly started close to this (see p. 63, where "the Strand way over the water" is expressly mentioned), its defence was of the first importance. Mr. W. J. Doherty, C.E., M.R.I.A., informs the Editor that, when making the new quay opposite the Custom House about 1874, his men had much difficulty in removing the double row of oak stakes with large stones filled in between them, forming the old ford which crossed the river diagonally to the ancient road, now called Middlepath Street. (Millington's Survey & New Harbours 1720)

p. 23. for the finishinge of the Rampier

This was an earthen entrenchment thrown up around the town at this time, which remained intact in 1685, when Sir Thomas Phillips made his well-known survey. The course of the Rampart is clearly given in these words—"The rampart ran along the present John's street, from Donegall street, and round by Hercules S^t where the North gate stood in North S^t then along said Hercules S^t and Smithfield to the rere of Chapel lane in Castle street, where it was met by Mill gate, passing from thence to the river Lagan at Cornmarket, by the Castle gardens (now the White Linen Hall). The north side crossed from John street, along what is now called the centre of Talbot st. turning eastward to the Crooked lane, and so to the sea above the Point feilds, now a part of the Towne." (Joy's MS.) A considerable portion of the bastions and intervening bulwarks remained till late in last century. In one of the old books belonging to the 3rd Presbyterian Congregation it gives as a district "The North street from the north gate both sids to ye Sentry Box at Pitters hill and from that to Craven Bridge both sids & from Pitters hill to ye Brewhous one Both sids which bounds is under the Inspection of William Mitchell and James Chalmers elders," 1725/6. This would tend to show that a guard was still placed on the rampart, or why the mention of sentry box? In a similar time of need in Carrickfergus a like defence was thrown up. "Curia tenta quinta die Octobris A^o 1574 coram Guliel Pierse Maiorem et Humfris Potts et Johan Cockerell Vice com, in le Town House de Knockfergus. This present day it was Ordered and agreed by the Sheriffs Burgesses and Commonalty that there should be a Vamour (sic) of Sodds or Turfs round about the Town for the Defence or better strengthening of the Inhabitants of the same which should be finished by the whole Corporation the four mounts at the four corners of the Town Excepted, which was made and compiled at the charge of the Province which Vamour as aforesaid was finished within one month after the Decree was made." In the next year this rampart was supplemented by a wall the cost of which was reckoned as follows. "We the Mayor & Corporation for the better furthering of the walling of this Town took in Bargain of his Honour [Lord Deputy Sydney] to Wall from her Majesty's Castle on the North East unto the Mount of the Mill along by the Sea side at 5^s sterl. the foot every foot to be made seven foot in the foundation four foot in the top of the Wall and 16 foot in height as appeareth by the Indentures of the bargain bearing date the 21st of October 1575." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.)

He came from Wales in James I.'s reign, settled at Castle Blaney, and was created a baronet in 1621.

p. 29. Geo: Rawdon

The Rawdon family has been described in authentic history as of very ancient lineage. One of the most celebrated of its scions was Sir George Rawdon, who, as diplomatist, senator, commander of troops, and Irish land agent, left many marks of greatness on the age. He was born at Rawdon Hall, near Leeds, in November, 1604. After having received a liberal education, and given evidence of possessing excellent abilities, he was appointed to an important office under Edward, Lord Conway, Chief Secretary of State in the Cabinet of that day.

On the death of his father, the first Lord Conway, which event took place at Lisnegarvy in March, 1630, the noble Secretary and his protégé came over to Ulster, where the new landlord continued to reside for several months every year during the remainder of his life. Young Rawdon, when not otherwise employed, took part in the management of the estate, and having much taste for military affairs, directed the discipline of Lord Conway's Volunteers. In 1639 he was returned to the Irish Parliament as one of the members for Belfast. In the next year Lord Strafford received secret intelligence that some of the deposed chiefs were collecting their forces for an attack on the King's troops. Lord Donegal, Viscount Conway, and Arthur Hill, three of the most extensive landowners in Ulster, added largely to the strength of their respective horse and foot soldiers, and considerable battalions of regular forces were concentrated in Belfast and Lisnegarvy. George Rawdon commanded the Conway troops. He had been over in London on business in October, 1641, when the news arrived that Sir Phelim O'Neill, Sir Con Magennis, and General Plunkett, with a force of seven thousand men, had taken the field, and threatened to drive the loyalists out of Ulster. Rawdon at once set out for Lisnegarvy by way of Scotland. The roads were almost impassable in many of the English shires, and it was nearly three weeks before he reached the Scottish seaport from whence he sailed, and on the 26th of November landed at Bangor. Next evening at a late hour he got to Lisnegarvy, and there found the local and royal troops in hourly expectation of the rebels—who had encamped near Brookhill—making a descent on the town. The story of the sanguinary conflict that took place in the streets of Lisnegarvy on Sunday, the 28th of November, 1641, need only be glanced at here, as the details are pretty well known to readers of Ulster history. General Rawdon, Colonel Chichester, and Sir Arthur Jerningham led the troops with such spirit that the rebels were totally routed, upwards of one thousand of their men having fallen in the conflict, and the dead bodies lay in the market-place and in Bridge Street in confused heaps. The survivors retreated towards Brookhill, but before leaving Lisnegarvy they set fire to the thatched houses, and in some hours the town was one great mass of ruin. On reaching Brookhill the fugitives set it on fire, and a valuable library was consumed, and some thousand ounces of ancient plate belonging to Lord Conway, and which had been placed there for safety, were either stolen or destroyed.

When General Rawdon was thirty-five he married Ursula, widow of Francis Hill, who had erected Hill Hall Fort. That lady bore him a son, but mother and child died soon afterwards. In 1654 he married Dorothy, the handsome and only daughter of his patron Edward, second Viscount Conway, by whom he had seven sons and three daughters. Having displayed the utmost fealty towards the legitimate heir to the Crown during the usurpation of Cromwell, Rawdon was ordered to repair to London in December, 1660, where Charles II. gave him command of a troop of horse, and ordered his appointment to be made out as Governor of Carrickfergus. He was also appointed one of the Commissioners for the Settlement of Ireland, and by royal patent had the grant of several thousand acres of land in Down, within "ye territory of Moyra." He was elected member for Carlingford, and created a Baronet, under the title of Sir George Rawdon, of Moyra House, County of Downe.

Probably of Antrim, and admitted a merchant stapler 24th April, 1645 (see p. 251). These two entries are partly torn away in the original MS.

p. 34. The Affidavit of Thomas Postley

This entry is also partly destroyed. Major Coughran (Cochrane) was the military governor of the town at the time (see p. 240).

p. 35. John M'Bryd

He was made a freeman on 6th March 1644 (see p. 251). Probably the same person who signed the Solemn League and Covenant at Holywood on 8th April of that year. The original preserved in the Belfast Museum is entitled "A Solemne League and Covenant for Reformation and Defence of Religion, the Honour and Happinesse of the King, and the Peace and Safety of the three Kingdomes of Scotland, England, and Ireland, Edinburgh 1643." On the blank half of p. 6 is written—"At Hollewood the 8 April 1644 and upon the nynth thereof lykewayes After sermon delyvered by Mr. William Adair upon both these dayes the covenant of reformation in religion was explained And Afterwards sworne subscribed and sealed with marks by a number of the inhabitants of the Kingdom of Ireland." Several other Commonwealth tracts are bound up with this unique relic. The Editor has a curious MS. receipt-book, written by Margaret M'Bride, Belfast, 1714, possibly his daughter. It contains, amongst other quaint dishes, the following :—

"To make paist Royall of flowers, Take cowslip roses and Marygolde and pluck off all the blossoms and beat y^m in a wooden bowl, then put y^m in as much suggar as will make y^m of one colour, w^t 2 or 3 spoonfulls of rose water, and boill it with stirring it untill y^t burn into suggar again, yⁿ bake it up to paist w^t gumdragon, and strain it w^t rose water, then roll it very thin, and put it in Moulds, and when it is dry, you may serve it up."

p. 36. dockter Nearne

If in practice at the time, he would see much of what Boate called "Leaguer Sicknesses," which he was assured by his brother, then physician general of the English forces, "had their original not from any defect of the climate, but of the cold and other hardships which the soldiers suffered in their marches ; for they many times going to the fields in cold and foul weather, and sometimes marching whole days long, yea several days together, in very dirty and wet ways, where their feet and legs were continually cold and wet, besides that they were sometimes constrained to pass through the water up as high as the knees and waist, and after all that hardship endured in the daytime, to lye in the night upon the wet ground in the open air this caused the above named diseases."

Fynes Moryson, describing Mountjoy's fight with Tyrone in November, 1600, says, "For the Army had fasted two Days, and after they had eaten but a little Bisket, and Cheese or Butter, never Men went on in a greater Jollity."

p. 39. Church yard

The Editor has been unable to obtain any earlier information as to the burials than that given in the Parish Register, of which the first volume begins in July, 1745, and continues to June, 1761. The second volume extends to 9th November, 1766, and is carefully written on parchment; the others are on paper, and continue down to the present. In 1746 138 deaths are registered, of which 22 were buried at Shankhill, the rest in the parish churchyard. Only a very few are noted as buried at Shankhill after this year. Five persons were buried in the church from 1745 to 1761, when such entries cease. Three of these were Byratts, two Macartneys, and a Widow Hadskinson. The mortality varied from 71 in 1754 to 209 in 1761; 30 deaths are recorded in August of the latter year. It seems to have been the most fatal month, for in the year 1756, when 193 deaths are entered, 44 deaths occurred in August, 8 being in one day—nearly all children. In the year 1757, when the first Census of the town was taken, the population being 8,549, there were registered 122 baptisms, 13 marriages, and 130 deaths, of which 69 were females. In 1780 occurs the entry—"13th Feby Edward Gorman a Inviled buried in the churchyard poor." The old burying-place was of considerable extent, being enclosed by High Street, Church Lane, Ann Street, and Forest Lane, now merged in Victoria Street. Along the walls of the two lanes were ranged the finest monuments, including those of the Pottinger and Collier families. A venerable relative of the Editor told a curious incident which she witnessed about the commencement of this century in the churchyard, opposite which she then lived. The parish sexton, in digging a grave, came on a mass of adipocere, which being reported to Dr. Marshall, a leading physician living in High Street, he immediately crossed the street, secured the specimen, which looked like a small cheese, and tasted it with apparent relish, much to her disgust.

p. 42. laid out for shingles to mend the church w'

Boate says that besides slates and Dutch tiles "there was another kind of covering in use, both for Churches and houses, to wit, a certain sort of wooden tiles, vulgarly called shingles; the which are thight enough at the first, but do not many yeares continue so." The church dedicated to St. Patrick, which occupied the position of the present St. George's Church, was utilised early in 1651 as a citadel, and termed "The Grand Fort" by Venables. A number of houses were removed to allow of entrenchments being thrown up; for compensation awarded to the occupiers see p. 69.

Mr. W. E. Armstrong, solicitor, remembers, about the year 1860, seeing a large cannon lying in the excavation made for the sewer in High Street where now stands the Albert Memorial. Doubtless one of the Commonwealth guns, afterwards thrown into the river, which formed the ditch on that side.

In Fisher's poem, "News from Lough Bagge (Beg) 1643" (Ulster Journal of Archaeology, vol. 8), a similar sacrilege is thus described—

"The whole Church wee have overspread
With shingle-boards in stead of lead;
Nor was it truely fitt, or fayre
We should stand cover'd, and it stand Bare.
Thus like good tenants wee have cure'd most Of these Decays at o' owne cost

And thoe wee no Churchwardens are Wee have put the Kirke in good Repayre.
Without we keepe a Guard ; within The Chancell's made o' magazine
Soe that our Church thus arm'd may vaunt Shee's truly now made Militant."

p. 44. John Steawart

Several contentions of the kind are given in the Carrickfergus Records MSS. In July, 1607, Clement Ford, Burgess, resisted the authority of the Mayor in censing upon him soldiers, "and in choler swearing by an oath to the Maiors face that he would never attend church or otherwise whilst he was Maior. If he did commit him that should be the damest committal that ever he committed."

p. 46. Captain Roger Lyndon

A son of Robert Lyndon, who came to Carrickfergus with Chichester. His signature as Recorder occurs in Carrickfergus Records MSS. Rawdon and himself represented the English as opposed to the Scotch party. The latter were much embittered against the former in 1646, and forced them to leave the town and find quarters elsewhere.

p. 52. Sovraignes seat

The original corporation pew was no doubt destroyed when the old church was converted into the "Grand Fort." In 1777 St. Anne's parish church was erected at the sole expense of Lord Donegall, and accommodation was then made for the Sovereign and Burgesses in a large square pew about half-way up the main aisle on the north side. It was arranged with the Sovereign's seat and desk opposite the door, so that the burgesses sat in their black and red robes, six on each side. Mr. William Spiller, who was Rev. Dr. Miller's churchwarden in 1870, informs the Editor that "no rent was charged for the pew, it was used to show strangers into, also officers, and barristers on circuit; the Judges, however, always sat in the Donegall pew. The Donegall family pew was in the front of the gallery, and had a small winding stair from the vestibule. In 1870 the Sovereign's chair and desk were removed to the vestry, where they now remain, and the pew divided into two." The accompanying illustration, from a special photograph kindly made by Mr. Wm. Swanston, F.G.S., gives a good idea of the old Spanish mahogany civic chair and desk. The carving is of very fine quality, in the so-called Chippendale style. Mr. James Morrow, one of the Corporation Sergeants-at-Mace from 1864, is represented behind the chair. Born in 1826, he has served, since 1849, 28 different mayors; and as his father, an old soldier who fought in the Peninsula, died recently at an advanced age, there is every prospect that the popular sergeant will be on duty in the new City Hall.

p. 58. Captain Robert Lawson

This was the courageous Derry merchant who saved Belfast from the rebels in October, 1641. (See note on p. 19.) He was on his way to Dublin, but turned back at Newry on hearing the rebellion had broken out. His own words are: "being Monday went down back again to great Belfast where they found most part of the inhabitants fled and flying, and carrying away their goods to Carrickfergus, and the old Lord Chichester shipped aboard in a ship. So Captain Lawson went throughout the town and blamed them for offering to leave the town, and intreated for some arms, either by buying or lending, but could not prevail. At last he found in Master Lesquire's house seven muskets, and eight halberts ready in the street to be shipped to Carrickfergus; which arms he took, and bought a drum, and beating the same about the town raised about twenty men, who came with him again up to the ironworks, having Mr. Forbus and some number with him joined Captain Lawson, where also he gathered in all about 160 horse and foot, who about two of the clock on the same Monday in the afternoon, being the 25th of October, the second day after the rebellion, marched into Lisnegarvy."

Boate describes Londonderry thus :—

"It is nothing big, consisting only of two long streets, the which cut one another cross-ways in the midst, but it is very handsome, the streets being broad and well paved, the houses some stories high, & built for the most of freestone, with a handsome church, market place, and key : and is inclosed with a thick and very strong stone wall, being one of the principall fortresses of Ireland."

p. 61. M^d That the daye and yeare

Rev. G. Hill has kindly supplied the following note :—"As this affair occurred during the struggle in Ulster between the Royalists and Covenanters, it cannot be regarded as an act of piracy on the part of the latter, but rather as a sort of reprisal, or act of justifiable warfare. The complainants, however, being Royalists, they naturally appealed for protection and redress to the Sovereign of Belfast, who had then recently been appointed to look after the interests of the royal cause in this town. The 'merchandise and goods,' of which the owners of the 'Katherine of Belfast' had been plundered, consisted, no doubt, in provisions (most probably oatmeal) and perhaps a small supply of ammunition—both of which commodities were in very urgent requisition by the people of the Ards at the date above mentioned. In the year 1643, General Robert Monro, in the interests of the Parliament and the Covenanters, had seized Belfast by a coup de main from the Royalists, and held it—in violation of the original arrangement with the Scottish forces—until June, 1649, when it was retaken from the Presbyterian party by the third Viscount Ards, afterwards created Earl of Mount Alexander." Bangwell is Bangor, situated two miles from Groomsport, which is a corruption of Graham's port. In a map of 1693 in the British Museum it is called Grimsport. Schömberg landed here in 1689.

p. 61. 1649

Under this date Joy's MS. states, "About Michaelmas a battle was fought at Bullers feild between the royal army and that of the parliament, in which the former were defeated, the latter was commanded by Col. Venables, who soon after entered the town. George Martin, sovereign, determined not to give billets, and retired to his country seat near the Whitehouse, in consequence of which his house was given up to be plundered." The old ruined mansion adjoining Mr. James Thompson's residence at Macedon was probably this country house. The Editor has a cannon ball made of local basalt, and recently found in excavating for a new building in Corporation Street, opposite the Mariners' Church. It was probably fired from one of the Scotch four-pounders in lieu of the orthodox missiles then exhausted.

p. 61.

The following deposition, from a copy (believed to be unpublished) preserved by Rev. Classon Porter, is given as an example of the military troubles of the time :—

The examination of Captain Andrew Adare, taken before mee, Captaine John Dallway Maier of Carrickfergus this 12th of May 1653, who for answer saith that about July 1649 the Lord of Montgomerie came and lay close seige to this garrison & was afterwards surrendered unto him. That the day before the said surrender one Joey Griffin a souldier under his dep^t command raised and made a mutiny within this garrison and gathered to himself severall souldiers in arms under p^tence he wanted his paie. That notice thereof being given to this dep^t, as being his captaine, this Dep^t went and through many good words and speeches p^tvailed at p^tsent with the s^d Griffin and the rest of his confederated mutineers, that he procured a seeming qualification, & soe left him and them for that present. That soon after this Dep^t was returned backe to his quarters a suddaine intelligence was brought to this Dep^t that the said Griffin had deserted his post, and betaken himself to an other place, and in a mutinous manner had procured unto himself five or six files of armed men some with firelocks the rest with muskets and lighted matches and more souldiers gathering together with the said Griffin from all quarters of the said garrison. That this Dep^t acquainting the Governor therewith and the said Griffin and the rest of his s^d consort were determined to possess themselves of the keys of the gates by force of armes, this Dep^t as well as all others the respective officers within the said garrison were forthwith respectively commanded by the said Governor to their respective posts and also sent for and secured the said keys. That in pursuance of their commands this dep^t coming found the said Griffin in a mutinous manner to have deserted his post and retyred to make good another place with the companie of eese. And this dep^t soe coming used all endeavours by persuasion to procure the said Griffin back to his depth s^d post, but instead of rendring his submission, or any obedience to his depth commands, presented his fire Locke against this depth breast bidding this depth stand backe and stande of, Where uppon this depth laid fast hould of his bandaliers with intent to secure this depth life, which breaking this depth by a stumble backwards fell almost to the ground, and being recovered this depth perceaving the said Griffin to have presented his piece to this depth breast and discerning nothing less than instant death by the said Griffin's mutinous expressions, to this depth, as well to preserve his owne life as all others within the said garrison and the loss thereof, gave unto the said Griffin some small inconsiderable cutt with intent only to force him to obedience, but he nothing regarding the same nor to render any manner of obedience but forcibly maintained his said mutinous act, intending hereby nothing less than to surprize the said garrison, Where uppon an other suddaine thrust given the said Griffin he fell downe and dyed, And this depth further answering saith that the same being only asked to qualifie the said mutinous act, and in obedience to his said command, which in duty he owed to God and which he humbly conceaveth himself no wayes guilty of murther.

Taken before me the day and year said.

JOHN DALLWAY Mayor.

p. 62. The humble Petition

A similar petition was sent by the Corporation of Youghal. For this and a large number of Commonwealth proclamations, see Town Book of Youghal.

p. 63. Carrickfergus

The history of this ancient town has been so admirably told by M'Skimin that it would be difficult to add anything of interest. Till the "Carrickfergus privilege" of retaining one-third of the total duties leviable on all exports and imports was abolished by Wentworth, the Lord Deputy, in 1637, its condition as a trading port was much superior to Belfast. A copy of the document fraught with so much of future importance for our city is subjoined. Boate, describing the Havens of Ireland, calls what is now Belfast Lough, Knockfergus, and says it grows narrower by degrees "the further it goeth into the land, the which it doth for the space of fifteen miles, as far as to the town of Belfast, where a little river called Lagon (not portable but of small boates) falleth into this Harbour. In this Bay is a reasonable good Road before the Town of Knockfergus (seated about nine miles within the land) where it is good anchoring in three fathoms." He puts both Carrickfergus and Belfast far down in his account of the Irish towns. Describing first Dublin, then Galway, Waterford, Limerick, and Cork, he says—"As for the rest of the Townes, Drogheda, Kilkenny, and Bandonbridge are passable and worthy of some regard both for bigness and handsomeness: But Colrain, Knockfergus, Belfast, Dundalk, Wexford, Youghall and Kinsale are of small moment, the best of all these being hardly comparable to any of those fair market townes which are to be found in almost all parts of England." The Editor has examined the series of ancient maps of the district preserved in the British Museum, and Record Office, London, in order to ascertain the relative importance of the two towns at various dates. In some of the early maps, dating from 1558, in the Record Office, which are illuminated in colours, Carrickfergus is shown much larger than its rival, and the Castle enriched with gilding, as if to show its importance. The Carrickfergus Records MSS., from which a number of illustrative extracts are given for the first time, are contained in a large folio of 347 pages of closely-written matter, transcribed at the expense of Dean Dobbs about 1785. The Irish Municipal Commissioners were informed that the original documents were used by M'Skimin when writing his History of Carrickfergus, and never returned. Dean Dobbs's transcript has been kindly lent to the Editor by Mr. G. M'Auliffe, J.P. The importance of Carrickfergus as a residence of the gentry continued into this present century. It was considered on a par with Lisburn in this respect, Belfast being regarded by these towns as merely a mart for trade; but the transfer of the Assizes put an end to their social superiority. Some of the ancient houses in the town are of much interest. The former post office contains a room hung with old painted canvas depicting hunting scenes in which the gallant Lord Blakeney, defender of Minorca, and buried in Westminster Abbey, 1761, appears. Into this room a lady recently deceased was taken as a child to see one of the beautiful Misses Gunning, then on her way to England. In Farquhar's "Twin Rivals," brought out at Drury Lane in 1703, a servant is jocularly asked by his master his opinion of London. "For dear joy," is his reply, "'tis the bravest place I have sheen in my peregrinations exshepting my nown brave shitty of Carrick-Vergus."

p. 63. Mr. Teag O'Hara

Head of the old Irish family so long resident at Crebilly, Co. Antrim. (See O'Hara's Irish Pedigrees.) He died about 1660, leaving four sons, one named Oliver in compliment to the Protector. His grand-nephew, Henry O'Hara, married the daughter of Dr. Hutchison, Bishop of Down and Connor. Joy's MSS. notes—"10th Geo. 1st. an act passed to enable Charles O'Hara of Crebilly to sell part of his estate to pay off his debts, and on the 8th April 1733 John O'Neill and Robert Dalway trustees sold off the Roote part of said estate to George Macartney, Belfast, who gave them 20 years purchase for them. Part of these lands was called the Castle Quarter of Loughguile. The castle had been the Savages." (See The Savages of the Ards, 1888.) Colonel Robert Venables wrote "The experienced Angler; or Angling improved: being a general Discourse of Angling." London, 1662. (Lowndes, Bib. Man., vol. iv. p. 1861.)

p. 65. Mr. Essex Digby

Nephew of the Countess of Donegall (Lady Mary Digby), and Incumbent of the parish under the Commonwealth. Afterwards Bishop of Dromore; died 1683. Dr. Alexander Colville's life is given in Hill's Montgomery MSS. He resided at Galgorm Castle, now the property of the Rt. Hon. John Young. For a curious popular tradition of his dealings with the evil one, see Dublin Penny Journal, vol. ii. Edmund Yeo was a nephew of Henry Le Squire, and town clerk of Carrickfergus. John Orpin was a pewterer in Carrickfergus "of a mean descent, the way he came to improve his fortune was by being one of the Executors of the Lady Langford, by which he got considerable, but not justly." (M'Skimin.)

p. 68. Sciant presentes et futuri

The original Latin of this and the entries on pp. 108, 156, and 158 is very much contracted. The Rt. Rev. Wm. Reeves, D.D., P.R.I.A., Bishop of Down and Connor and Dromore, has most kindly transcribed them in extenso, and supplied the translations.

Be it known to those who are & shall be that we Richard Hunt of Henerichellym, in the County of Surrey, yeoman, and John Hunte, son and next heir of me the said Richard Hunte, have given and granted, and by this our present charter, have confirmed to John Helhows of Walton on Thames in the County of Surrey aforesaid, yeoman, in consideration of a certain sum of money duly paid and satisfied at the sealing of the presents, all that our parcel or piece of ground called Buryguston, lying and being in Walton aforesaid, which parcel or piece of ground to wit, contains as estimated six acres of land be they more or less, and abuts on a certain enclosure of one Richard Bernard on the south side, and on the commons of Walton aforesaid on the east side, to have, hold, and enjoy the said parcel or piece of ground with its appurtenances to the said John Helhowse, his heirs and assigns, to hold for ever of the Lords in Chief the fee thereof by the services thence due, and of right accustomed. And accordingly we, the aforesaid Richard and John Hunt will guarantee for ever, and by these presents will secure the said parcel of land with its appurtenances to the afore named John Helhowse, his heirs and assigns against all folk whatsoever. Be it known moreover that we the aforesaid Richard and John Hunt have made, ordained, constituted, and on our behalf have appointed our beloved in Christ, Thomas Mowld, yeoman, our true, trusty, and lawful attorney to enter, on our behalf, in our stead and names, upon the said parcel or piece of land with its appurtenances, and take lawful and peaceable possession and seizin, thereof, after possession of the same and the seizin thereof thus taken and held, and thereupon for us, in our behalf and names, to deliver full, lawful and peaceable possession and seizin of and in the premises with the appurtenances to the aforesaid John Helhows, his heirs and assigns for ever, according to the force, form, and effect of this our present charter, and to esteem as final and our pleasure all and sundry that our said attorney shall do or cause to be done in the premises. In testimony whereof we have affixed our seal to this our present charter. Given on the 6th day of March in the 3d and 4th years of the reigns of Philip and Mary by the grace of God, of England, Spain, France, both Sicilys and Ireland, King and Queen, Defender of the faith, Archduke of Austria, Duke of Burgundy, Milan, and Brabant, Count of Hapsburg, Flanders, and Tyrol; so that the aforesaid John Helhowse, his heirs, and assigns, do for ever pay or cause to be paid to the aforementioned Richard and John Hunt, their heirs and assigns for ever year by year at the feast of Michael the Archangel on lawful demand.

The instatement and seizin with the lawful and peaceable possession were taken and delivered the day and year as below, according to the tenor, force, form, and effect of this present charter, in the presence of

p. 72. Edw Reynell

The annexed pedigree of the Reynell family has been kindly supplied by Rev. Wm. Reynell, B.D., Henrietta Street, Dublin.

This family, originally of Norman origin, was at first seated in Cambridgeshire, and had estates there, as also in Yorkshire and Somersetshire. During the absence of Richard I. in the Crusades, Sir Richard Reynell, of Pyttney, in Somersetshire, was constituted by that monarch custodian of the castles of Exeter and Launceston. Walter Reynell, seventh in direct descent from Sir Richard, married in 1395 Margery, daughter and heiress of William Stighull, of East Ogwell, County of Devon, by his wife, eldest daughter and heiress of Robert de Malston. The family then migrated into Devonshire, where it flourished for many generations. Prince, in his Worthies of Devon, mentions many members of it.

Edmund Reynell, second son of Edmund Reynell, of Malston, by Ann, daughter of Lewis Hatch, of Allan, both in Devonshire, was thirteenth in direct lineal descent from the first-mentioned Sir Richard. He came to Ireland with his kinsman Sir Arthur Chichester, and (with other scions of Devonshire houses) settled at Malone, near Belfast. He married Mary Fortescue, and had, with other children, a son Edward, a Free Burgess and Sovereign of Belfast, who married Katherine —, and had a son Edmond. Edmond Reynell married Hannah Dobbyn. He was a Sir Clerk in Chancery (Ireland), and acquired estates in Westmeath and other parts of Ireland. He died in February, 1698-9, and was buried in the vaults of St. Michan's, Dublin. Mr. Reynell left, with other children, two sons, Arthur and Richard.

Arthur Reynell was of Castle Reynell, Co. Westmeath, of which county he was sheriff in 1718 and 1727. He married Elizabeth Cooke, of Cookesboro', in the same county, and had issue two sons and nine daughters. He died 1735. Edmond Reynell succeeded. He served sheriff for Westmeath in 1745, and for Longford in 1746. He died unmarried in 1767, and was succeeded by his brother John, who served as sheriff for Westmeath in 1779, and died in 1792. By Catherine, his wife, second daughter and heiress of William Ludlow, he left issue two sons and six daughters. William Reynell, of Castle Reynell, the eldest son, Lieutenant-Colonel Royal Irish Fencibles, married Jane, daughter of Sir William Montgomery, Bart. He died 5th May, 1829, aged 76, having sold Castle Reynell to James Gibbons. Barbara, his third daughter, married John, third Earl of Donoughmore, and had an only son, William, who died unmarried, and three daughters, two of whom still survive.

Richard Reynell, second son of Edmond Reynell, was captain in a regiment of horse. He married Dorcas Cooke, of Cookesboro', Co. Westmeath, and had issue fourteen children. From him descend the families of Reynella, Co. of Westmeath, now represented by Mrs. Balfour, of Townley Hall, Co. Louth; of Killynon, Co. of Westmeath, now represented by Richard Reynell; and of Ballinalack, Co. of Westmeath, now represented by Cooke Reynell.

Richard Reynell, of Killynon, married in 1875 Louisa Anna Smyth (she died 1881), and has a son Richard, born 1879.

Arms—Argent, masonry sable, a chief indented of second. Crest—A fox passant, or. Supporters (as antiently borne)—Two foxes. Motto—"Murus aheneus esto," and (over the crest) "Indubitata fides."

p. 77. John Correy

The present Earl of Belmore, G.C.M.G., &c., &c., Castle Coole, County Fermanagh, is the seventh in descent from this former freeman of the town (see p. 254), through his great-granddaughter, Sarah Corry, wife of Galbraith Lowry-Corry, M.P., and mother of Armar, first Earl of Belmore. In the year 1656 John Corry purchased the Manor and Lordship of Castle Coole, where he died about 1681-6. The token issued by him when a merchant in Belfast is described in Vol. iv. of the Proceedings of the Royal Irish Academy, append. iv., p. xxx.; a good example is in the Benn collection, Belfast Museum. It is stated in an old MS. History of Fermanagh, quoted by Lord Belmore in his valuable "Parliamentary Memoirs of Fermanagh and Tyrone," that "the family of Corry was formerly remarkable in Scotland for their valour by y^e frequent wars which sometimes happened betweene England and Scotland; and beareth for their Coate of Arms, Argent a saltire Couped Gules, etc." John Corry, Hugh Eccles, and other Belfast merchants were concerned in a Chancery bill anent the will of Archibald Moore, which his mother disputed. She said that John Corry and his wife had been of a long and familiar acquaintance with her son, but his widow successfully proved the will as shown by the entry made by the town clerk (p. 72). John Corry ceased all connection with Belfast in 1656, and was High Sheriff of Fermanagh in 1666. A fine old silver tankard, with the English Hall-mark 1681, belonged to him, and is now preserved at Castle Coole. From photographs kindly sent by Lord Belmore, it appears to be of superior workmanship, with the arms of its original owner engraved on the side in the style of the period.

p. 79. Verses

These doggerel lines are in the autograph of the town clerk of that time. In Anderson's valuable "Catalogue of Early Belfast Printed Books" there is mentioned under date 1795, "Popular Ballads preserved in Memory." This very scarce collection is formed of ballads taken down from local recollection at that time, and composed in the middle of the 17th and beginning of the 18th centuries. One entitled "Kirk and Covenant" bears internal evidence of being written about 1660. It begins thus—

"Och, and alas, a well a day,
Sin' now our hands we wring,
We're slaughtered, murder'd, made a prey,
A sad and dolefu' thing,
They who 'tofore, did drone and roar,
Are now begun to rant,
And now they pray, the live long day,
Wae worth the Covenant."

p. 94. Michael Bigger

THE family of Bigger is one of the few in Belfast of which members still exist after the lapse of 250 years. Three brothers came over from Nithsdale, in Scotland, about the year 1640, and settled in Belfast, and also at Biggerstown, now Hightown, in the parish of Carnmoney. The trade tokens of Michael and James are given herewith. These brothers were "Commissioners" for the old Presbyterian Church adjoining the North Gate. John and Michael Bigger were enrolled as freemen in 1654. Other notices of the family occur through the book. An entry close to the old Market House in High Street was long known as "Bigger's Entry," and had formerly been the entrance to the family residence, which was built at some distance from the street; subsequently premises were added in front, which remained in the occupation of the family till 1830. At Biggerstown the whole district was in their possession at one period, and they still own a considerable portion. The will of Michael Bigger was made at Edinburgh in 1674, and is subjoined as a curious survival of the Scotch element. John Bigger, who had the interesting document on p. 140 recorded, left by his will, in 1721, 20 shillings to the poor of the parish, "to be paid to each of them as y^e Rev Mr fletcher shall think most fitt." The will of

BADGE OF THE UNITED IRISHMEN.

Michael Bigger, yeoman, 1718, states—"Imprimis I leave all my body cloaths Linen and woolling except a ticken vest and bricces to—and my chattels to be roped or sold by Publick Cant at a convenient time after may decess at the discretion of my exact' and oversear." James Bigger was one of the earliest volunteers, and a Delegate at Dungannon in 1782. William Bigger and his son Mathew worked a woollen factory at Biggerstown, being subsidised by the Irish Parliament. The latter was a colonel on the Irish side at the Battle of Antrim, and his friends were well represented there. David Bigger started the Carnmoney Cotton Printing Mill about 1800, now the Mossley Mills; he was an original governor of the Academical Institution, and also a founder of the Linen Hall Library. His name is annexed to the Resolutions presented to the Irish Parliament about 1790 in favour of the Roman Catholics, and he was an United Irishman. His son, the late Joseph Bigger, of Ardrie, Belfast, has left the following sons:—H. J. Bigger, Surgeon-Major S. F. Bigger, M.D., India, W. C. Bigger, F. C. Bigger, E. C. Bigger, M.D., and F. J. Bigger, solicitor. The late Joseph Bigger, Trainfield, was a wealthy merchant and chairman of the Ulster Bank; and the recent death of his son, Joseph Gillis Bigger, M.P., was much regretted by his countrymen. W. F. Bigger, J.P., D.L., left Belfast and settled in Derry, his family are—J. Edgar Bigger, W. G. Bigger, M.D., and C. J. Bigger, of the Foyle Shipyard, the late Prof. J. L. Bigger, M.A., was his eldest son. There are also others of the name in and about Belfast.

p. 100. Towne Hall

In the view of High Street in 1786, reproduced on p. 100 from the original drawing (and inserted by the courtesy of Mr. Olley), the old building, with its quaint cupola and arched openings, is clearly depicted, standing at the corner of High Street and Corn Market now occupied by Forster Green & Co. Like most market houses of the time, the ground floor or "sellers" was used for store and weigh-house, the upper rooms, to which access was obtained by the "stayres," served as the meeting-place of the old Corporation and for public assemblies in later times. An old lady still living at the age of 104 informs the Editor that she has a distinct recollection of seeing the last blackened heads that were spiked on the parapet of the Market House. They are thus referred to in the News-Letter of August 17, 1798:—"The heads of Dickey, Storey, and Byers have been taken off the market house by order of general Nugent where they were placed on spikes." At this time it was used for the sittings of courts-martial; those arrested for such offences as being found in the streets after nine o'clock p.m. were confined in a basement which extended under the rere portion. Mr. Robert Young, C.E., saw a little Gothic oak window, almost at the ground level, brought to light when Grattan & Co. removed their premises in 1868. Small red bricks similar to those used in the Castle, with some sandstone dressings, formed the walls. "His Majestys arms" gave dignity to the High st front, from which also projected the clock, whose dial fell in 1739, breaking a mans thigh. In the Roll of Freemen under 26 Sept 1667 Thomas Orpin glasier is admitted, the fee of ten shillings to be done in work, no doubt at the market house. On 22 Sept 1681, John Chrchley plasterer was admitted without a fee, but he was "to mend ye markett house." The only relic now existing of its former splendour is the bell, which is of bell metal, with a rough iron clapper, capable, however, of bringing out a fine tone. On an ornamental band is the date 1761 in raised figures. The extreme width and height are the same, viz., 22 inches. After much inquiry it was found and identified at the old Holywood Lighthouse, where the Editor saw it by the kindness of the Harbour Commissioners, to whom it was presented by Lcrid Donegall after the demolition of the market house.

p. 102. Mallon ffall and dunmury and part of the parish of Coole

These districts were mainly peopled by Lord Chichester's tenants from Devonshire. Mr. W. F. M'Kinney, Sentry Hill, Carnmoney, kindly supplied a copy of the receipt printed herewith.

"Received from the Parish of Carnmoney (by the Hand of Mr William Russel) Six Pounds Sixteen Shillings & Six pence Ster: being the contribution of said Parish toward the Expences laid out by me in New Roofing & Repairing the Market House of Belfast. £6: 16: 6 Received this 21st Sept^r 1770. p. 108. Omnibus et singulis

To all and singular, Justices, Wards of the peace, and Mayors, Aldermen, Sovereigns, Bailiffs, Constables, Officiaries, Ministers, and loyal subjects of the Sovereign Lord that now is, to whom this present writ shall come,—Robert Bindlos, Baronet, Mayor of the borough or town of Lancaster in the county of Lancaster, William Townson and Giles Hoysham, gentlemen, Bailiffs of the same borough or town,—Health in the Lord everlasting ; We do you to wit that the town and borough of Lancaster aforesaid is an ancient borough, and that all the Burgesses of that borough have, enjoy, and possess, and as far as the memory of man reaches, have never done otherwise than have, enjoy, and possess, the liberty, privilege and immunity to be relieved and exempt from all toll, passage, pontage, stallage, pannage, tonnage, lastage, as also from all other exactions and demands whatsoever for all their goods, merchandises, bought or sold, through the whole kingdom of England, also through all seaports, and islands, cities, ports, and towns of Ireland, Wales, and Man ; also that the Lord James, late King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, by his Letters patents, under his great seal of England, granted and confirmed to his Burgesses and his borough aforesaid, and their successors for ever, the liberties, privileges and immunities aforesaid, agreeably to the tenor of divers Charters of the progenitors and predecessors of the said Lord the King, and to the same Burgesses and their predecessors granted from the time of King John formerly monarch of this kingdom of England, and lately confirmed by the most excellent prince our Lord, Charles the Second, now King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland ; and to the same Burgesses and their successors by his Letters Patents, as well under his great seal of England as under the seal of his Duchy of Lancaster, according as in the same Letters Patents and the charters remaining in the possession of the aforesaid Burgesses, more largely is contained and appears. Which things above recited we not only testify to you by the tenor of the presents, and further that one William Yeates was admitted and sworn a Burgess, and for the period of thirteen years now last past has been admitted and sworn to the Liberties of the same borough or town of Lancaster : To wit, he was admitted and sworn as is alleged in and on the ninth day of October in the year one thousand six hundred and fifty-two. Wherefore we the aforesaid Mayor and Bailiffs do in particular ask that when the said William Yeates or his servants shall come to cities, towns, ports or other places within the kingdom of England, or to ports and islands of Ireland, Wales, or Man with their goods or merchandises, they be relieved and free from all Toll, passage (in English through toll), pontage, stallage, pondage, tunnage, lastage, and other exactions and demands whatsoever, according to the grant of said Lord the King and his progenitors as above recited. In testimony whereof we have set the seal of the aforesaid borough or town to these presents the fifth day of February in the eighteenth year of the reign of our Lord Charles the Second, by the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the faith, in the year of the Lord 1665.

p. 117. The course of the backwater

This was the tail race coming from the Manor Mill across Smithfield, which was probably called so from smithies erected on its course. In 1761 complaints were made of the danger caused by horses sent up to be watered in North Street, no doubt at this conduit. The new plantation was situated at the foot of Waring Street (called after the Sovereign), on the line of Corporation Street. The houses were small, with thatched roofs, and divided into the Fore and Back Plantation in the map of 1788.

p. 121. The new Dock or River up to the sluices

This new Cutt River, as it is termed on Phillips' map, extended from the Lagan to the sea bank, beside the Castle Gardens, and crossed the Blackstaff estuary. Mr. C. H. Brett's valuable "Notes on the Topography of Old Belfast," read before the Belfast Literary Society, describe this fully.

p. 129. Arthur Earle of Donnagall

1st Earl, see p. 227. As there was no Registry of Deeds till Queen Anne's reign, Wills, &c., were often enrolled in Town Books for preservation.

p. 134. ye old kea or wharfe be enlarged

On Phillips' map some ships are shown in the lower part of the High Street river, close to two long one-story buildings situated below the church. These were probably the "new stone houses of George Macartney and Henry Thomson," used as warehouses only, as Macartney's dwelling-house, mentioned in his will with garden, meadow, &c., was near his mills.

p. 136. Halberts

The old night watchmen, before 1842, were called by various nicknames—as hornies, bulkies, and charlies, the latter from the reign in which they were introduced. They were armed with halberts, and had a wooden rattle or crake.

p. 138. y^e great bridge

This must have been one of the upper bridges over the High Street river, if the measurement of about 200 Irish perches from the Tuck mill dam be correct. It was the fourth mill ascending the stream, and is now occupied by the Clonard Works. The bridge may have been that opposite the market house, supposed by Benn to be depicted on the famous "Belfast Ticket," of which the unique original is in the Benn collection, Belfast Museum, but it probably represents the western end of the Long Bridge. The wooden pipes are still occasionally dug up, in fair preservation; some exhibit the iron ferules inserted at the faucet to prevent the spigot breaking them. The Editor has one about 8 feet long by 9 inches diameter, with a bore of 3 inches. Native alder and pine were used at first, then Norway poles, whilst square balks were found at Lord Donegall's house, now the Royal Hotel. Cork only got pipe-water in 1761, when Ducart (of canal fame) received £25 "for taking the level of the river Lee and drawing several plans of waterworks." (Town Book of Cork.)

Belfast Ticket, c. 1730, showing market house and bridge.

p. 138. Capt Rob^t Leathes

He was agent to the Donegall estate, and connected with the Lewis family, as shown by the following pedigree, kindly drawn up by Miss Lewis, Nettlefield. Two extracts from his diary, preserved in Joy's MS., are subjoined. "My family and servants with those of another gentleman sailed for Port Glasgow in consequence of the times, 1697, at Pesley (Paisley) saw 3 warlocks and 4 witches burned. 1690. Oct 7. In the morning about a quarter of an hour after seven o'clock, there was an Earth quake in Belfast, shaking houses to the amazement of the Inhabitants, not usual in this place but one above 40 years since. I found it in the lowest room of my house, leaning upon the window at the time. I first believed it to be a giddiness in my head, till comparing with others who felt the same." W. Sacheverell notes in 1698—"The new pottery is a pretty curiosity, set up by Mr. Smith the present Sovereign and his predecessor, Captain Leathes, a man of great ingenuity." The ware was similar to Rouen, of which large quantities were imported here—a shoe in blue and white is at Nettlefield, another dated 1724 is figured. (Jewett's Ceramic Art, Vol. II.)

At Nettlefield is still preserved the Oak Punchbowl "presented to Robert Leathes, Sovereign of Belfast and Agent to the Earl of Donegall, in the year 1690, it having been in the Donegall Family for upwards of 100 years previous." His portrait is given on p. 139, reduced from that in MS.

Fires were numerous in the old boroughs, full of cage-work houses, with thatched roofs. In 1622 nearly 1500 houses were burnt in Cork, where a law was passed to remove all thatch under a penalty of £40 (Town Book of Cork). In one of the thatched cottages still left in Frederic Street, Lord Edward Fitzgerald lay concealed a month in 1798.

James the Second, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland King, Defender of the Faith, &c. To the Sheriff of Antrim greeting—We command you that you fail not, by reason of liberty in your Bailiwick, to enter the same, and by honest and lawful men, and serve an injunction upon the Sovereign, Free Burgesses, and Common Burgesses of Belfast in the county aforesaid to appear before the Barons of our Exchequer, at the King's Courts, Dublin, on the fifteenth day after Easter next ensuing, to declare to us By what warrant, right, or title they claim to have, use, and enjoy the liberties, privileges, and franchises following,—to wit, that they be of themselves one body corporate and politick in substance, act, and name, under the name of "the Sovereign, Free Burgesses, and Common Burgesses de Belfast," and by said name to plead and implead, to sue and be sued, and to have the power of sending two Burgesses to attend Parliament, and to hold a Court of Record; which franchises, liberties and privileges it appears the aforesaid Sovereign Free Burgesses and Common Burgesses aforesaid have, for the space of one year now last passed, and longer, usurped and do still usurp, in defiance of Us, and to the grievous injury and manifest hindrance of our Royal prerogative, as in a certain Information against the said Sovereign, Free Burgesses and Common Burgesses of Belfast in the said county, to exhibit by our Attorney-General, who on our behalf sues, more fully is set forth and appears. And further to receive what our Barons thereupon may cause to be done and which of right and agreeably to the laws and customs of our said Kingdom of Ireland ought to be done. And further, that there and then you have the name, and by whom they exercise jurisdiction, and the brief. The Charter and Town Seal alone survive. All efforts to trace the old weights and measures proved fruitless. "The great ordinary measure shall be a sive of 24 gallons." (Town Book of Youghal.)

p. 170. five dozen of clift boards

The meaning of "clift boards" in this connection is not clear, unless it may be taken as a private term to denote money, known to both parties. The postscript "it would be better yn Irish money" would then be intelligible.

p. 171. the market

As Benn's History treats of the markets, little need be added here. The Countess of Longford was Ann, daughter of 1st Earl of Donegall (pp. 131, 227). The district mentioned includes all Castle Place, into which opened the upper Castle gate, both sides of High Street, as far down as the dock at Skipper Street, and all Bridge Street. The Stone Bridge was opposite Bridge Street, and may have been built by Hugh Eccles in 1664. In 1738, Robert Willis, formerly Latin schoolmaster, intimates that he now keeps shop opposite the Stone Bridge, next door to the Post Office. In 1860, at the making of a new sewer through High Street, the ancient level of the footpath was found to be 3 feet below present surface. By the kindness of Mr. James McGee, the Editor has the large collection of local tokens, &c., acquired by the late J. G. McGee at the time. (Ulster Jour. Arch., ix. p. 113.) In News-Letter, Dec. 22, 1761, is the notice, "Next Friday being Christmas Day, the Margymore or great Market of Belfast will be held on Thursday next."

p. 172. A Copyy of the Charter

The original in Latin is preserved at the Town Hall. This copy was made to precede the recapitulation of all the Corporate bye-laws, which was found necessary at this time, as the originals were difficult to read, full of erasures and interlineations, and scattered. Joseph Smyth published an English version of the Charter in 1812.

p. 187. ye New Bridge

This was the Long Bridge, which was commenced in 1682, and completed just in time to be seriously damaged by the passage of Schonberg's artillery. Thompson's engraving gives a faithful view of this historic structure in 1823.

In the Belfast Museum are preserved two Scrabo sandstone blocks which were built into the bridge close to each other. Each is about 19 inches high by 11 inches across. One bears a coat of arms,—on a bend, between 3 mullets, 3 cinquefoils; the other has the annexed inscription sunk in angular letters. If "Mr. Chades bridge" was not one of the small bridges across the High Street river which was to be cleaned to "ye neer mill," viz., the Manor Mill at Millfield, it would appear as if the Long Bridge was called after him as the builder, and perhaps architect. In the Hibernian Gazetteer, 1835, the dimensions of the bridge are given. "The whole Bridge is 2562 feet long, of that the 21 arches take up 840, and the dead work 1722, the breadth of the arched part is 22 feet and of the whole 19." It was taken down in 1841.

p. 188. The humble addresse

It is noted 9th April, 1696—"It. That if the Recorder come not here to draw an Ascotiation (sic) for this Corporation (to be presented to his Maj^r) by tomorrow night, that it be drawn up by Mr Harrison." (Town Book of Youghal.)

p. 190. Thomas Knox

He purchased a part of the Donegall estate at Dungannon. An ancestor of Lord Ranfurly.

p. 192. Warham Jemmett

Formerly collector at Cork, where a bridge was called after him.

p. 193. whose names follow

These are said by Benn not to have been given.

p. 195. My Lord Donegall

He was 3rd Earl, and served under Lord Peterborough in Spain (see p. 228). A plan of Barcelona given in Tindal's Continuation of Rapin's History, London, 1744, shows Fort Monjuich, or Mount Joie, as close by the sea, and strongly fortified. In the same volume is the map of Belfast about 1660, reproduced on p. 80.

p. 197. The Corporation of Belfast hath power

The first entry is the same as one supplied to Benn by Rev. Dr. Reeves, with this reference, "A printed Broadsheet bound up in a vol. of old papers in the Primate's Records, and it is endorsed (in Bishop King's handwriting) Belfastes Case, 1703." (History of Belfast, p. 475.) It was no doubt cited as part of the case brought against George Macartney, Sovereign, by the widow of 3rd Earl of Donegall, and which he successfully refuted before the House of Commons in 1707. The entry beginning at "Resolved" has reference to this, and is evidently incomplete.

p. 199. Councillor Macartney

This speech seems to be a draft probably composed by the Town Clerk. The reference to Lord Donegall would imply that his death was not known in Belfast, although it occurred on April 10, 1706.

p. 200. Whereas the Key of the Port

The Bill for this improvement was not carried till 1729.

p. 214. Rob^t Green Esq^r Constable of the Castle

He was a lawyer, and the agent for seven years of the Donegall estate, which was managed by Lord Barrymore as trustee. Green Street was named after him. Some of his letters, written about the time he was superseded by the appointment of Thomas Banks early in 1726, contain interesting information as to the state of the town. The following extracts are printed for the first time:—

“Mr Seymer was with me this day desiring to know if y^r Lordship (Barrymore) had written anything relating to his searching for Coals, he tells me he hath discovered what looks very like Coals on my Lords Estate at Dunmurry, & doubts not to find them near whitehouse, where they will be of much more value. I hear the lead Ore gott at Innishowen turns to very good acco^t that M^r Chichester and Mr Jones his nephew have each of them got two hundred guineas to admitt a partner to share in their profit but of this I doubt not butt y^r Lordship hath a better acco^t from other hands having reason to believe what I write is true. Know it could do no hurt if no good the Merch^{ts} are dayly with me desiring to putt y^r Lordship in mind of doing something to preserve if not encrease y^r remains of their declining trade which cannot be without great encouragem^t to build conveniences for trade and to preserve what already built great complaints are made ag^t the managem^t of my Lords Courts and not without Cause the exactions are great and delays much greater besides thirty pounds hath been lately leyed of this Mannor to build a Goale by presentments at our sessions at y^r instance of Mr Banks who cares not what power he brings into y^r Mannor to compass his ends No seneschall or Bailiff ever had a Goale before and in truth it may be rather called a Spunging house being built on a tenem^t and joining to a tenem^t that he rents from m^r Macartney the Coll^r with a room over, to which the Courts & Jurys are to be adjourned his Bailiff keeps the house and sells liquor where many of our Lords Tenants that have anything to do in the Courts are too oft obligd to spend more than they can spare.” (Letter of January 29, 1725.)

“My Lord—I have oft writt that the trade of this place decays the inhabitants are moving hence to Dublin & elsewhere and have earnestly recommended y^e procuring an Act for setting long leases or for lives renewable, that, woud encourage to build and repair whats most ruinous those whose interest are in houses most sensibly feel the effects of peoples going of with their families, as I do whose study always possible to supply that loss and in order thereto I have long endeavourd to gett a woollen Manufacture sett up here & hope to effect it if any Encouragement can be on my Lord Donegalls Acco^t itt will bring many families workmen & artificers here it will keep much money in the town and countrey which is now Annually laid out in Dublin for woollen Manufactures but work houses must be built and for some time little return can be expected from 5 or 6 thousand pounds that must be advanced to carry on the work for the Encouragement whereof and the good of the place I am willing to subscribe 500^l or a greater sum. if your Lordship approves the project and thinks itts worth the Encouraging a few lines to that purpose, will soon sett the work on foot. My Lord Donnegall, & his Lordships successors, will gain greatly thereby: and it shall have the best assistance in the power of my Lord your Lordships most obedient Serv^t Robert Green.” (Letter of February 20, 1725.)

His postscript, in a letter to a Dublin friend, adds—

“I would gladly know from him and you what Doctor Tisdall is doing I hope the Church & Dock bill will sleep for ever! at least till we have another Session or another Parliam^t.”

“Your Lordships of the 12th gave great satisfaction to the Merch^{ts} and chief traders here so soon as rec^d. I communicated what your Lordship had done for the benefit of trade and to free from the great expense and burden that the intended act woud have brought upon them, they then resolvd by a letter to y^r Lordship so far as was possible to express their thanks & acknowledgments, which when our Coll^r heard he gott the Sovereign to assemble y^e Inhabitants by Ringing the town bell then read your Lordships letter to him the 27th post Harangued the people to write a letter of thanks. In truth I am informed all but two were against his being named in any letter that they were to sign & earnestly request me to desire No Macartney may have any thing to do in laying out my Lords bounty Most of the poors money is in Isaacs hands already, how or when, it will be gott out of the Lord knows. Our Sovereign it is thought cannot live out his year." (Letter of March 26, 1726.)

"Mr Clugston seems highly delighted to think of his approaching Hon^r all he wants is a book to teach him the law resolving to read much as he hears our Late Sovereign did but he understood not what he read and I believe Mr Clugstons understanding will be abundantly less. I gott not your Lordships Diaper till this week y^r order came too late for y^e last years whitening. I have bought three sorts for table cloths four of each sort 2 yards & $\frac{1}{2}$ wide. 12 y^d at 15^s p^r yard, 12 att 12^s 6^d and 12 at 9^s 6^d" (Letter of May 7, 1726.)

p. 215. Candidates

The commonality, with Sovereign and Burgesses, had the right to elect the sergeants at mace by Charter (p. 177). Joy's MS. notes—"1824. Only 2 freemen admitted within memory."

p. 219. The Oath of the Sovraigne

These oaths are placed at the end of the original MS. The two first seem of the time of King Charles I.

p. 220. Arthur Lord Chichester

The original MS. of Sir Faithful Fortescue's account of his renowned uncle, Lord Deputy of Ireland and real founder of Belfast, is preserved amongst the Fortescue family papers at Ravensdale Park, Newry. It was printed for private circulation by the late Lord Clermont in 1858, and does not contain Bodley's anagram or the King of France's letter at the end of the copy in the Town Book. It is impossible to determine at what time this account was inserted by the Town Clerk, but the accompanying history of the Chichester family seems from internal evidence to be either condensed from Lodge's Peerage of Ireland, 1754, or more likely to have been a portion of a MS. pedigree supplied to Lodge, and which he cites.

Some additional information is here added to Fortescue's narrative, which, however, presents a reasonably accurate portrait of this remarkable man. Arthur Chichester was one of that distinguished company of Devonshire squires, including Raleigh, Drake, and Carew, who shed so much lustre on the closing years of Elizabeth's reign. The second son of Sir John Chichester of Raleigh, by Gertrude, daughter of Sir William Courtenay, he was sent at an early age to Oxford, where his tutor was Alexander Spicer, who afterwards wrote an elegy on him. His youthful rashness consisted in robbing one of the Queen's purveyors—little better than robbers themselves—and he fled into France, not Ireland. As a contemporary notes—

"He was a captaine of the shippe called the Victorie under the command of the Lord Sheffield, employed against the Spanish invasion An. 1587 & 88. Afterwards he was captaine and commander in the Portugal voyage of 200 foot in the Regiment of the General Sir Francis Drake, 88 & 89. He went with Sir Francis Drake to the West Indies, and in Portorico he set fire of the Admiral of the Spanish Frigates, 95 and 96."

He went to Ireland in 1599 to revenge the death of his brother, Sir John, who was killed in a conflict with James MacSorley MacDonnell in 1597 at Ballycarry. Lodge's Peerage contains the anecdote, "In K. James's reign, MacDonnell going one day to view the family monument in St. Nicholas's Church at Carrickfergus, and seeing Sir John's statue thereon, asked, How the d'ell he came to get his head again, for he was sure he had ance ta'en it frae him."

Pinkerton considered this apocryphal, as before James reigned MacDonnell was dead. (Ulst. Jour. Arch., vol. vii.) It was soon recognised that the most capable man in Ireland was Arthur Chichester; and after his appointment as Lord Deputy in 1604, the State Paper Calendars of the time show clearly the all-important part he played during his 10 years of office—in one dispatch pleading with the King for an opening of the ports in Ireland; again, settling the details of the Ulster Plantation, which, unfortunately for the real pacification of the country, were departed from by other statesmen. He was anxious to have arranged the settlement, as if His Majesty were to begin a new plantation in America, disregarding unjust demands for vested rights in land, lest, in the words of Lord Keeper Bacon, addressed to Sir W. Jones, Chief Justice of Ireland in 1617, "Ireland civil be worse to us than Ireland savage." In the four volumes of Irish State Papers now preserved in Philadelphia are many documents concerning Chichester. The following abstract, taken from a letter written to him by King James from Newmarket, March 4th, 1613, sufficiently shows the respect in which his long services were held:—"As his Lordship was first called by his (the King's) election to the high place he fills, the duties of which he has so faithfully discharged, that he has continued him in that employment these many years, beyond the example and custom of former times, so he now of his own mere motion, without any mediation of friends, has advanced him to the degree of a Baron of that kingdom, in acknowledgment of his many acceptable services performed. It was a secret purpose of his long before, and he only deferred it for his Lordship's greater honour, that he might take the opportunity of doing so upon the calling of this his first Parliament. For his Lordship's comfort, he is to know that he serves 'a master with a liberal hand, and one that is so well affected to him,' that this is not the last favour which is intended to him." It is interesting to know that as Lord Deputy he assisted the newly-formed East India Company to build vessels in Ireland, and was at the close of his life Commissioner for the settlement of Virginia with Lord Carew. When ambassador to the Palatinate, being besieged in Mannheim by Count Tilly, he informed him that it was against the law of nations to besiege an ambassador. On Tilly sending word that he took no notice of his having this office, he replied, "Had my master sent me with as many hundred men as he hath sent me on fruitless messages, your General should have known that I had been a soldier as well as an ambassador." As early as 1614 his health gave way, for he had not gone on a regimen like his predecessor Mountjoy, of whom Moryson writes, "Before these Wars he used to have nourishing Breakfasts, as Ponadoes and Broths; but in the time of the War he used commonly to break his Fast with a dry crust of Bread, and in the Spring Time with Butter and Sage, with a cup of Stale Beer, wherewith sometimes in winter he would have Sugar and Nutmeg mixed. He took Tobacco abundantly, and of the best, which I think preserved him from sickness." His disease recurred again, and as Spicer, his domestic chaplain, says in his elegy, printed in 1625, the year of his death—

"Lord, what is man? when such a man as he,
Whose parts excelled in the high'st degree,
Dies by a plurisie, a corrupted tumour,
Proceeding from a bad, unhealthful humour."

There is a reference to the death of his wife in the Fee book of the famous Irish physician, Dr. Thomas Arthur:—"1621. I then went to the Lady of Arthur Chichester, the Quaestor or Treasurer of this Kingdom, then living at Carrickfergus, in Ulster, whom, when labouring under dropsy, and forewarning her of her death within a few days after my prognosis, I attended upon: he gave me on the 25th of May £5. 10. 0." The tomb, which forms one of the full-page illustrations, was erected during his lifetime, and the kneeling figure (p. 224) of Lord Chichester is no doubt an excellent likeness, as well as that of his wife, which is by the same chisel. The material used for the sculpture, including the small figure of Sir John Chichester, is Derbyshire alabaster. The entire has been richly decorated with colour and gilding, and bears a strong resemblance to the coeval tomb of Lord Cork in St. Patrick's, Dublin.

The Editor, with the permission of the Countess of Shaftesbury, has recently made a careful inspection of the Chichester vault at St. Nicholas, Carrickfergus, of which the following are the particulars:—The vault is twenty feet long by fifteen feet wide, the roof forming a semi-circular arch of cut stone six feet high in centre; a door, now bricked up, formerly opened into the church. It contains ten lead coffins, which are as follows, beginning with the latest:—1. Sir Arthur Chichester, Baronet, aged 80 years, 1847. 2. Elizabeth, relict of Sir Edward May, Bart., died 26th March, 1823, aged 73 years. 3. Sir Edward May, Bart., died 23rd July, 1814, aged 63. 4. A coffin without inscription, but presumably that of Arthur, 4th Earl Donegall, died 1757. 5. John Chichester, died 1746, brother of the ladies burnt in 1708, and father of 5th Earl. 6. Catherine, Dowager Countess Donegall, widow of 3rd Earl. Her coffin has a finely engraved gilt plate, with coat of arms impaling Chichester and Forbes. An outer wood coffin has been covered with crimson velvet and brass escutcheons. 7. A coffin without inscription, but probably that of Arthur, 2nd or 1st Earl. 8. A child's coffin, shaped, with one handle at the head, and in raised letters, "DEC 3. 1642. E.C." Doubtless Edward Chichester, son of 1st Earl Donegall. Spices have been placed in this coffin, which still emit an agreeable odour. 9. A child's coffin similar to above, but with handle at each end, and in raised letters, "D.C. QUI: OBIT: 8 IAN 1638." No doubt Digby Chichester, another youthful son of 1st Earl. 10. A small child's coffin, very strongly made, with no inscription, but in which rest the remains of the infant son of the great Lord Deputy, in the words of his epitaph—

"Here lyes the Father's hope and Mother's joy,
Though they seem hapless, happie was the boy;
For of his Life the long and tedious race
He hath despatch'd in less than two moneth's space."

It is strange that the coffin of the infant should remain, when those of his mother and his father, the founders of the vault and sumptuous tomb above it, are alike unknown. In addition to the foregoing coffins, there is a rude lead box, about 12 inches square, containing the viscera of Arthur Lord Chichester, Baron of Belfast. (This was a customary usage of the time—see Stanley's Memorials of Westminster Abbey.) A wooden coffin, much decayed, holds the bones of four adults; two of the skulls have the upper portion above the orbit removed—one rudely, as if by blows of a sword, the other by a saw. The former may be that of Sir John Chichester, the statement of Lodge that his head was cut off by Sorley Boy being thus restored to credence, as this mutilation would agree with the undoubted fact that he was killed by a shot. Tyrone, to whom the head was sent, may have returned it for interment.

The Editor has carefully examined the site of Lord Chichester's splendid house at Joymount (so called in compliment to Lord Mountjoy), which was completed in 1618, and of which some views may be seen in the British Museum. It is said to have been designed by Inigo Jones, and bore resemblance in the details of its projecting windows and sky-line to his work. Brereton describes it, in 1635, as a "very statelie house or rather like a prince's pallace," but says "the windowes and roomes and whole frame of the house is over large and vast." Anxious to find any traces of his being a "Lover of all civill becoming sports games and recreations," the Editor has discovered an interesting fact not hitherto noticed—viz., that when forming the grounds, Lord Chichester, as an old Devonshireman, and perhaps one of the players at the historic game of bowls in which Raleigh and Drake joined on Plymouth Hoe when the Armada was signalled, had laid out a bowling green, now comprised in Mr. W. Gorman's garden. This gentleman says that in the corner of it beside the town wall a great quantity of bones and bullets were lately dug up, whilst many fragments of deers' horns have been found in the present Joymount garden. Further confirmation of his love of bowling is found in a note on John Cusack, Mayor of Dublin, 1608:—"This Mayor was a great House Keeper, for, in his Mayoraltie, he invited the Lord Deputie sundrie times. He would make Matches of Bowling and Shooting with the Lord Deputie and Councill." No doubt at Chichester House, which occupied the site of the Irish Houses of Parliament, now the Bank of Ireland, many a return match was played. At Belfast Castle a bowling green was also laid out, which is mentioned in the Charges roll 1666, and in a lease to G. Macartney of a tenement near the Castle it is described as extending backwards to the Bowling Green. It may be added that the old Irish Corporations usually reserved the right of the burgesses to use the green when land was let for that purpose. "3 Feb 1670. It, that W^m Hall shall have a lease of the Bowling-green for 31 years at 20s. for the first year, and 40s. for the remainder, he to fit it and build a house at his own charge; Burgesses to have the keys." (Town Book of Kinsale.) Whether the Bowling Green at the reere of the old Belfast Academy was ever used in this way is uncertain, but it probably dates back to the time of Robert Joy, Town Clerk, who built the house.

p. 225. Chichester Earl of Donegal

The Chichester family, from the time that Belfast was incorporated by the foresight of their great ancestor, have exhibited many substantial proofs of their kindly interest in its welfare, some of which are referred to in the present volume. Carrickfergus, although more centrally situated on the estate, was not fostered at the expense of the more inland town. On the contrary, the 1st Earl of Donegall, in founding his mathematical lectureship at Trinity College, Dublin, expressly stipulates for "such as should be brought up in the school at Belfast erected by him." The poor of Belfast were also remembered in the wills of the family, whilst much employment was found at the large farms and gardens kept up during the 17th century. It is evident, from leases of the time, that rents were very moderate. One instance may suffice, taken from an Indenture dated 1688, in which Francis Thetford (see Lewis's pedigree) conveyed to John Fletcher for £300 his lease of six score and five acres, called the "New Inclosure," adjacent to Oldpark and Skegonearl, for which the rent was £16 13s. 8d. As his lease was dated 1686, and he got such a sum for his interest when civil war was raging, the inference is obvious. A few years after this, Cromac Woods were opened up by wide avenues, called Passes, appropriated to the recreation of the townspeople. In the 18th century the Earls of Donegall improved the town in many respects—a great reclamation was made on the site of Ann Street, and on it the first Linen Hall erected by the estate at a cost of £1,500. Other public buildings succeeded, including the Exchange (now Belfast Bank), which cost £4,000, and the Parish Church and Vicarage, erected at the sole expense of Lord Donegall. There is a large aquatint in the possession of Robert Macadam, showing the Assembly Room over the Exchange as a richly decorated apartment, and the architect's name is given—Sir R. Taylor. The Brown Linen Hall was followed by the generous gift of the site for the White Linen Hall granted in 1787. In this year the Sovereign's gold chain, which is now superseded by the new Mayor's chain, was presented to the Corporation, as the following extract sets forth. (It is worthy of note that this minute, which was found on the books of the Corporation by a committee of the new Corporation, of whom R. S. Lepper was secretary, is the only record known to exist of those contained in the second Town Book, all trace of which is lost):—

Borough of Belfast, March 29th, 1787.

At an assembly of the Sovereign and Burgesses, held this day, the Sovereign informed the Burgesses that Lord Donegall had presented a valuable gold chain to the Corporation, most elegantly executed with a medal appendant, on one side of which are the arms of the Lord of the Castle, on the reverse those of the Corporation of Belfast curiously embossed; and that his Lordship desired that it may be worn by the Sovereign, for the time being, and delivered to the Sovereigns in succession. That they may be invested with it publicly, upon their being sworn into office, as one of the insignia of their being in full possession of their office.—Resolved, that the warmest and most grateful thanks of the Sovereign and Burgesses be presented to the Earl of Donegall for his magnificent present, and that they trust that this badge of office will be a constant memento (sic) of the connection which ought ever to subsist between Lord Donegall's family and the Corporation of Belfast.—Resolved, that, agreeable to his Lordship's desire, the gold chain shall be worn by the Sovereign for the time being, and delivered to the Sovereigns in succession, and that they shall be invested with it publicly, on their being sworn into office, as one of the insignia of their being in full possession of their office. (News-Letter, 23rd December, 1842.)

Further proof of this kindly interest is found in "The Journal of Disbursements of the Earl of Donegall's Antrim Estate, from July 1786 to October 1796." "November 28th, 1786. Paid John Knox for a gold box intended to be presented to the Lord Lieutenant with the freedom of this Corporation, £25. March 25th, 1787. Paid the Rev. William Bristow $\frac{1}{2}$ year's salary as Sovⁿ of Belfast due this day, £50. August 15th, 1787. Paid John Galt Smith account of Sovereign's gown, £7. 12. 8."

The Parish Church was also liberally supported. William Ware, the organist, who published a collection of church music, dedicated to the Marchioness of Donegall, is thus mentioned. "W. Ware for instructing singing boys, £30, and providing surplices for ditto, £5. 13. 9."

The old Poorhouse, with other charities, such as the Fever Hospital, received large sums. At this same period as much as £70,000 was given to improve the Lagan Navigation. (Joy's MS.)

The recent munificent gift of the present noble owner of the estate, made on the occasion of the presentation of the memorial casket containing the address presented to her son, the Rt. Hon. the Earl of Shaftesbury, on his attaining his majority, attests sufficiently to the cordial relations still existing between Town and Castle. The accompanying illustration shows this fine example of modern Celtic art, designed by Marcus Ward & Co., and executed by Sharman D. Neill.

p. 228. Ladys Jane, Frances, & Henrietta were unfortunately burnt Joy's MS. notes. "April 25th 1708, the Castle of Belfast burned down, and the ladies Jane, Frances, and Heneretta lost their lives. This accident was occasioned by a servant, who left a fire of wood burning in a room which she was airing. A servant woman called Catherine Douglas and a daughter of Parson Berkley perished: Mary Taggart, a servant, made her escape thro' the flames." As the Editor was anxious to verify a note given him by Rev. G. Hill, in which he mentioned that portraits damaged by fire of these unfortunate ladies were preserved by Lord Templetown at Castle Upton, and were called "The Burnt Ladies," and as on enquiry at the Castle only one picture answering to the description was pointed out with the title "The Burnt Lady," he wrote to the Viscountess of Templetown asking for further information, and received the following courteous reply:—"As to the portrait of the Burned Lady, so far as Lady Templetown knows it has nothing to do with the Chichesters, with whom the Uptons are not connected, but is supposed to be the portrait of a Miss Upton married to a local chief of the name of Dunn, who is supposed to have burnt her and her children in front of his own house. This tradition is recorded in a Parochial Survey of Ireland in 1816, page 249, volume 2, by W. Shaw Mason, Sec. to the Board of Public Records." Although the Castle was not rebuilt, it was not entirely deserted till the beginning of this century, when it was finally taken down.

The old lady (see note on p. 100) remembers Montgomery's Market filled with ancient pear trees, and several rooms still inhabited in the Burnt Castle, including a fine parlour with black oak floor, wainscotted walls, and huge chimney-piece. This Market was placed in the Castle yard, as it was exempt from interference by the Corporation.

Amongst the charges entered in the Donegall Journal of Disbursements previously mentioned are several relating to the old castle.

John Alexander inhabited the Castle in March, 1789, and county cess paid for him amounted to 5 guineas. The office was built in 1787: Roger Mulholland was the builder. In 1792 the castle gate was repaired, cost 3s. 3d. 12 hearths are charged at the castle and 4 at the office, showing its occupation still continued in this year.

p. 229. List of the Volunteer Companies

“Monday, 21 Feb., 1760. Thurot landed about 1,000 men near Carrickfergus, which he attacked and took, with the Castle, after a brave resistance by Lt.-Col. Jennings with 200 men. The Lord-Lieut., the Duke of Bedford, on receiving the news, sent an express to the Governor of Charles Fort and Kinsale, John Folliot, Esq., to despatch the man-of-war then lying at Kinsale in pursuit of the French. On Sunday morning, Feb. 24, Governor Folliot acquainted Capts. Elliot, Clements, and Logie with the Lord-Lieut.’s orders to proceed to sea, and on Feb. 29 his Maj. ships, Elliot, commodore, came up with the Squadron under M. Thurot off the Isle of Man, and after a sharp engagement of an hour-and-half captured them. Underneath is a statement of the respective force:—Bellisle, 44 guns, 510 men; Le Blonde, 30 do., 357 do.; Terpsichore, 24 do., 270 do., com^d. by M. Thurot; Eolus, 32 guns; Pallas, 36 do.; Brilliant, 36 do., com^d. by Cap. Elliot.”

Mr. F. J. Bigger, Ardrie, Belfast, has two large engravings of that period, one showing the engagement, and the other depicting the French ships as prizes in Douglas Harbour. Lord Charlemont has given a graphic description of the mustering of the volunteers in Belfast, many armed only with a Lochaber axe—a scythe fixed at the end of a pole, but all so impressed with the necessity of regularity, that the crowd was perfectly undisturbed by tumult, riot, or even drunkenness. Two of the commanders named in the list for Co. Down merit a short notice as descendants of the famous William, Baron Savage, who settled in Down in 1777. Henry Savage of Saintfield was head of the Prospect branch of the family. He married Grace, grand-daughter of the Hon. Susan Gillespie, wife of Hugh Gillespie, Cherryvale, daughter of 3rd Baron Rollo, and aunt of Sir Robert Rollo Gillespie, K.C.B., whose statue stands in the Square of Comber. Francis Savage of Ardkeen Castle was High Sheriff of Down in 1732, and the most considerable person in the Ards about 1760. For a fuller account see Prof. G. F. Savage-Armstrong’s valuable monograph on The Savages of the Ards.

p. 232. Burgess Roll

The first names in black letter were probably entered at the incorporation of Borough.

This refers, of course, to original MS. See corresponding page 245.

p. 238. Sir Stephen May, 1815

After this entry is written in pencil on the original, “leave a space for more names.” As this list of Sovereigns is incorrect towards the end, and some years not filled in, a list is here subjoined of the names from 1800 to 1842, when the old Corporation ceased. 1800, John Brown; 1801, same; 1802, Arthur Chichester; 1803, Edward May, M.P.; 1804, same; 1805, same; 1806, same; 1807, Rev. Edward May; 1808, same; 1809, Edward May, M.P.; 1810, same; 1811, Rev. Edward May; 1812, Thomas Verner; 1813, same; 1814, same; 1815, same; 1816, Rev. Edward May; 1817, Thomas Ludford Stewart; 1818, same; 1819, Thomas Verner; 1820, same; 1821, same; 1822, same; 1823, John Agnew, resigned, and Andrew Alexander appointed; 1824, Andrew Alexander died and John Agnew appointed; 1825, John Agnew; 1826, same; 1827, Rev. Lord E. Chichester; 1828, Sir Stephen May; 1829, same; 1830, same; 1831, same; 1832, same; 1833, same; 1834, John Agnew; 1835, same ; 1836, same ; 1837, same ; 1838, same ; 1839, same ; 1840, same ; 1841, Thos Verner, Jr. ; 1842, same.

The Town Clerks from 1802, when Wm. Atkinson died, were as follows :—
1802-1815, William Byrre ; 1816-1823, Stephen Daniel ; 1824-25, none ; 1826-1836, Henry Ferguson ; 1838-1841, H. C. Clarke ; 1842, Messrs. A. & J. Montgomery.

In 1842 the last list of the old Corporation is thus given :—

CORPORATION OF BELFAST.

Lord of the Castle—George Augustus, Marquis of Donegall.

Constable of the Castle—R. F. Gordon.

Sovereign of Belfast—T. Verner, Jun.

Burgesses.

Sir Arthur Chichester.
Thomas Ludford Stewart.
Thomas Verner.
Earl of Belfast.
Lord E. Chichester.
Rev. Samuel Smythe.

John Clarke.
Rev. A. C. Macartney.
Sir Stephen May.
Robert Coulson.
John Agnew.
Jos. Macartney.

Town Clerks—Messrs. A. & J. Montgomery.

Sergeant at Mace—William Trelford.

The following are the Town Clerks of Belfast since 1842 :—John Bates, 1842-1855 ; J. K. Jackson, 1855-1856 ; James Guthrie, 1856-1878 ; Samuel Black, 1878.

p. 239. Electio Superiorum

This was the official entry of the election of the Sovereigns. The swearing in, Juratio Superiorum (sic), was alone entered by the Town Clerk after 1644.

p. 241. and y^e two Maces

No doubt those still in the possession of the Corporation. This notice confirms Mr. Day's opinion that the large mace is of the Stuart period.

p. 242. thirty five Burgesses

These are given by Benn as thirty-five inclusive of Sovereign, whereas by the terms of the Charter (p. 160) they comprised that number in themselves. The omitted name in his list is that of Toul or Ton! O'Neil. As the more important burgesses are mentioned by Benn, it is only necessary to add a short account of the brothers Dobbin supplied by one of the family, Mr. Leonard Dobbin, Hollymount, Cork. Humphrey and William Dobbin were the sons of Lieut. James Dobbin, of Duneane, whose name appears on the list of those proposed to be removed to Munster by Cromwell. He was one of the Carrickfergus Dobbins who are first mentioned in 1400. The token of Humphrey Dobbin was issued when he was twenty, and he died 1721. His son Rigby was Mayor of Carrickfergus, 1724. William Dobbin was a captain in the siege of Derry, which he assisted to defend, and afterwards resided at Moneyglass. His wife was Mary Eccles. His daughter married William Morris Jones, Moneyglass.

p. 243. King William Landed

Several contemporary views exist of this momentous event, and it has also been described by Storey and others (see Ulst. Jour. Arch. passim). The troops landed at Whitehouse, and it has never been explained why the King preferred Carrickfergus, where he only stayed half-an-hour, probably visiting Mountjoy. He met Schonberg's coach-and-six at Whitehouse, and drove across the Strand to the North Gate. His Court was held at the Castle, then in possession of Sir W. Franklyn. Bonivert, a French refugee in the King's service, notes—"We landed at the Whitehouse (five days after the King), where we saw on our arrival a great number of poor people, we went that night to Belfast, which is a large and pretty town ; and all along the road you see an arm of the sea on your left, and on the right great high rocky mountains whose tops are often hidden by the clouds, and at the bottom a very pleasant wood, very full of simples of all sorts—The people very civil, and there is also a great house belonging to my Lord Donegall, with very fine gardens and groves of ash trees. The inhabitants speak very good English.” There was great mortality in the town from the overcrowded Hospital provided by Thomas Pottinger, and filled with Schonberg’s fever-stricken soldiers. Both Shankill and the High St. graveyard were crowded, whilst those dying in the ships were buried at Tillysburn. It is interesting to note that a printing press accompanied the King; a proclamation issued from it was the first printing in Belfast. The first dated example seems to be, strangely enough, A Coronation Sermon on William and Mary, preached at Dartmouth by Rev. John Flavel, printed by Patrick Neil & Company, Belfast, 1700; a copy of it is in the Editor’s possession.

In the British Museum an unpublished diary of Lt. Wm. Cramond’s is preserved. He went through the Irish Campaign of 1690, and does not mention Belfast at all, although it is difficult to know how he kept out of it in his itinerary. “On 20th April went to Galgorm (coming from the North), 21st to Carrickfergus, 22nd to Newtowne, 25th to Lisburn, 26th to Gilhall, 28th to Newry and part of the way back to Gilhall, 29th to Legacurry, 30th to Dundalk.”

p. 246. The Roll of the Freemen

This is particularly valuable as forming a kind of directory for the town at periods where no other information is available. In later times subscribers’ lists in Belfast printed books are of importance as a means of determining names and addresses. One of the earliest is to be found in “Dialogues on Education, H. & R. Joy, 1753.” From the mention of merchants of the staple it is evident a Guild of Merchants existed in connection with the Corporation. All trading towns of any importance had such bodies. In Stirling a Merchant or Guildry Charter was granted by David II. “We grant also to our said burgesses of Strivelyn that they shall have a merchant guild, except the waulknors and weavers.” These latter, with the hammermen, tailors, shoemakers, fleshers, tanners, and bakers constituted in Stirling the incorporated crafts; outside these was the “Hail Omnigatherum” of callings such as dairymen and porters. Carrickfergus had a guild called free merchants of the staple, no others being allowed to buy or sell under a penalty. The Mayor of the Corporation on retiring was appointed next year “Mayor of the Staple.” The staple merchandise of England included wool, wool fells, leather, lead, tin, butter, cheese, and cloth. The guild consisted of a body of persons bound together by laws of their own making, the King’s licence being first had to the making thereof. They had thus facilities for collecting accounts and exclusive dealing much like some of the present associations of traders.

All irregularity of dates in the original roll, arising from later lists being carelessly entered by the town clerk, have been preserved. The following notes on some of the freemen are of necessity much abridged:—

P. 247. John Goye, Joyner. Some of the oak furniture made by local joiners of the 17th century is occasionally met with. A strong framed press in two heights, for many years in the family of Mr. T. Huston, Ashley, Carnmoney, has on the frieze JOHN · CLOSH · P · C · 1686 the letters P. C. = Parish of Carnmoney. Another specimen seen by the Editor had inlaid in holly, BELFAST · 1688. P. 248. Sir William Wray married a daughter of Lord Edward Chichester. Danyell McNeale was Daniel O’Neill, son of the unfortunate Con O’Neill of Castlereagh. Born about 1603, he became a protégé of Charles I. Both Laud and Wentworth esteemed him. Charles II. bestowed on him several posts, including that of Postmaster-General. His wife was Countess of Chesterfield. In 1844, a labourer dug up in the fosse of Castlereagh 150 shillings and sixpences of Edward VI. and Elizabeth in a pewter vessel. P. 248. Sir Charles Coote, with the other officers, commanded the detachment mentioned on p. 306. He was killed in 1642. His son Charles was created Lord Mountrath. Theobald Taaffe became 2nd Viscount Taaffe and 1st Earl Carlingford. There were two Sir James Dillons in 1640. P. 253. George M’Cartney, called Niger, married the daughter of Quintin Catherwood; his second wife was Elizabeth Dobbin. His descendant, Earl Macartney, in a MS. pedigree corrected suâ manu passes over his position as leading merchant, shipowner, and miller. Portraits of four Georges, commencing with his son, M.P. 1693, are in possession of Dr. H. Hyndman. P. 254. Robert Brice Clerk, perhaps grandson of Rev. Edward Brice (first Presbyterian minister in Ireland), of Broadisland. The Editor has a token, found in High Street, of his son Robert, of Castle Chichester, 1671. P. 259. Gilbert Wye was steward when Andrew M’Cullough made a mustard-pot and silver buckles for Earl Donegall, 1666. P. 261. William Van Hovan was perhaps brought from Holland to lay out the Castle Gardens in the Dutch style. P. 262. Thomas Pottinger, ancestor of the family once resident at Mount Pottinger, now represented by Sir Henry Pottinger, Bart. P. 264. Samuel Downes was Town Clerk, 1667, perhaps son of Ludovicus Downes, Vicar, 1642. P. 266. William Tomson Gray merc^r Mr. Hugh M^cCall, Lisburn, kindly informs Editor "that the Gray merchant purchased in dull seasons from the Drapers gray or unbleached linen, stored it up, and did large business with bleachers, although not employing weavers, as the Drapers did." In Elizabeth's time they were accused of selling arms, purchased from the soldiers, to the Irish, giving 12d. per lb. for powder, and getting 3s. P. 267. John Charnley feltmaker, synonymous with latter; rabbits' skins were the raw material. P. 267. Monsieur Daniel Mascon. Probably a wine merchant from Bordeaux, which had much trade here. P. 268. Sir Hercules Langford. He is described as of Belfast. Hercules Street was named after him. Married daughter of Henry Upton, sister to Arthur Upton here mentioned. John Chichester was a nephew of 1st Earl Donegall; died in William's camp, Dundalk, 1689. Sir Arthur Chichester became 2nd Earl Donegall. John and Arthur Chichester were nephews of 1st Earl. Conway Hill was son of Arthur Hill, P. C. Constable of Hillsborough Fort, son of Moyses Hill. P. 269. Chichester Phillips was son of Sir Thomas, called by Lord A. Chichester a "discreet and honest servitor." P. 270. Sir Michael Hicks, Secretary to 1st Earl Salisbury, ancestor to Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. Claudius Gilbert, Vicar, died 1696. For his connection with a ghost story, see Ulst. Jour. Arch. iii. P. 271. Hans Hamilton was nephew of 1st Viscount Clannaboye. Dudley Loftus was Clerk to Lord Mount Alexander, and son of Dr. Dudley Loftus, Vicar-General, whose life has been written by Rev. Dr. Stokes, T.C.D. Henry, Earl of Clanbrassill, was 2nd Earl, known as the fat Earl. William Hill was son and heir of Arthur Hill (see above). John, Lord Butler, 7th son of Great Duke of Ormond, as Earl of Gowran, married Ann, daughter of 1st Earl Donegall. Charles Meredith, of Mooretown, married daughter of 2nd Lord Blaney. Richard, Earl of Arran, was fifth son of Duke of Ormond; had a lease of the lighthouse on Island Magee, 1667. Pierce was 6th Baron Cahier [Cahir], Tipperary. Major Samuel Stewart was lieutenant of Col. Cromwell's troop at Lord Montgomery's funeral in 1663. Richard Needham was owner of estates at Newry inherited from Sir Henry Bagnall. The foregoing party were no doubt guests of Earl Donegall. P. 273. Thomas, Earle of Ardglass, 1st Earl. James I. granted him Manor of Downpatrick, 1617. Richard Dobbs' Brief Description of the County of Antrim, 1683, was first printed in Hill's MacDonnells of Antrim. Arthur his son was Surveyor-General of Ireland, and on finishing the New Houses of Parliament in 1741 received £250. His descendants still occupy Castle Dobbs. Edward Muschamp was of Drumanakelly, Co. Down. Sir John Rowley married daughter of Sir Hercules Langford. Tristram Beresford had estates at Coleraine. P. 278. Viscount Ranelagh was uncle of 2nd Earl Donegall. Francis, Lord Augier, created Viscount Longford, married Anne, daughter of 1st Earl Donegall. John, Lord Massereene, as Sir J. Skeffington, married daughter of Sir J. Clotworthy, 1st Lord. The Joneses, father and son, were of Osbertstown, Meath. Sir W. Flower's descendants were ennobled as Viscounts Ashburn. Sir Francis Blundell had killed Viscount Taragh on previous 6th July, but received a pardon. P. 282. Hugh McGill, son of Rev. David Magill, Curate of Greyabbey. The two St. Georges were sons of Sir Oliver St. George, Carrick-Drumrusk, Leitrim. P. 283. Pawlett Phillips was a brother of Chichester Phillips (see above). Edward Brice was a grandson of Rev. E. Brice, Broadisland. A set of silver communion cups was given by him to Ballycarry congregation; they have the Dublin hall mark of 1680. P. 284. Hugh Montgomery was of Ballylesson; married widow of 4th Lord Blaney; was Colonel of a regiment routed at Clady Ford by King James, 1689. P. 286. The following names, omitted by a clerical error, should precede 1723:—W^m Scott gener^r 22 August 1688. Laurance gener^r 22 August 1688. W^m Leakes march^t 22 August 1688. Henry Savage march^t 22 Sep^r 1688, made freemen. P. 289. Joseph Hall, bellfounder. In 1624 Frederick Rotten was admitted a freeman of Carrickfergus on condition "that he shall cast the first Bell which the town shall have occasion to use. The Town finding and providing the metal wood and fewell." (Carrickfergus Records MSS.) P. 292. William Mankin, silversmith. Perhaps the silver mounts of "The Psalms, Belfast, 1700" (Gordon's Historic Memorials of the First Presbyterian Church of Belfast), were his work; also a silver punch ladle, embossed with vine leaves, without hall mark, for many years in the family of Dr. J. Milford Barnett. P. 292. Lord Conway was the nobleman whose huntsman at Portmore, John Stringer, composed "The Experienced Huntsman" (Belfast: James Blow, 1714), the first work of a secular kind printed here. Only one copy of the 2nd edition, 1717, is known to exist. P. 293. Collyer & Company. Mount Collyer was named after the family. At the recent demolition of this house and the adjacent Jennymount, Roman objects were discovered in the foundations—at the former a classic head of purple Egyptian porphyry, at the latter a bronze medal of Nero. P. 296. Lord George Sacville. This admission of freemen was warmly challenged at the time. Stewart Banks was the recipient of a large silver bowl from the weavers of Belfast in 1756. It bears the Dublin hall mark, and is in the possession of his descendant, J. W. E. Macartney, D.L., Clogher Park. P. 298. Willes Earl of Hillsborough was created Marquis of Downshire, 1789. He was Secretary of State for the American Department; and the library at Hillsborough Castle contains a number of valuable MSS. relative to his office. P. 300. Mr. David Manson, author of English Dictionary (Belfast: Daniel Blow, 1762). In the preface he describes his remarkable system of education which was carried on successfully for many years in Donegall Street. To his ingenuity the cotton manufacture and agriculture owed several improvements. He died at Lilliput, where he had a bowling-green for his pupils' use. (Dr. Bryce's MS.) His portrait in oils is in the Royal Academical Institution.

p. 300. A Perspective View of Belfast in 1790

Mrs. T. L'Estrange has kindly allowed this interesting drawing by Mary Patterson to be reproduced here. The Mall which extended from the Paper Mill to the White Linen Hall is partly shown on the map of 1788 in the present volume. It formed the fashionable country promenade at this period. In the Donegall Journal of Disbursements already quoted are the following notices of it in 1788:—"John Alexander gave his account of making Ditches subdividing the Fields in the Mall—late Mrs. Clarkes, 15 . 16 . 6. Paid John McGain & Partner watching the trees in & near the Mall to prevent their being topped for May-bushes, 2. 8½." There are two probably unique unfinished proofs of views of Belfast, without title, or painter or engraver's name, in the King's Library, British Museum. They both show the town about 1790 from Co. Down side, and measure 20 inches by 15. At this time "there was in Belfast by calculation, 7 Inhabitants worth £30,000; 5 worth from 20 to 29,000; 9 worth from 15 to 19,000; 14 worth from 10 to 14,000; 49 worth from 5 to 9,000." (Joy's MS.)

Several art industries were carried on at this period, of which unfortunately very few specimens are now extant. This is particularly the case with respect to the manufacture of fine pottery and faience, which was established in Ballymacarrett by Thomas Greg, John Ashmore, and S. M. Stephenson, M.D. Some pieces of this ware in the form of sauce-boats and quaint jelly-moulds, in the possession of Mrs. T. L'Estrange, show that an imitation of Wedgwood's Queen's ware was aimed at. The glaze used is cream coloured, and the modelling very well done. Volunteer jugs and teapots of Wedgwood's manufacture, which are reputed to be of Belfast make, may yet be seen amongst old family collections of china. Probably the ware was brought over in the "biscuit" state, and the transfer printing put on and burnt in here. The art of glass-making, engraving, and cutting was successfully worked for some years in Ballymacarrett by Edwards and others; their flint table-glass can be recognised by a peculiar milky opalescence. Notices of employment for glass-cutters occur in old News-Letters. The Editor has a well-designed vase in the shape of a classic urn, with cover, cleverly engraved and cut, which shows the perfection attained in this beautiful art. Great skill and taste are also displayed in the contemporary cabinet work executed by John Getty. Some of his inlaid mahogany bookcases, exhibiting the influence of Sheraton, are occasionally met with. His successor, Sloan, although a good workman, yielded to the prevalent taste of the Regency, and inlaying was given up altogether.

For many years after this date the town made but slow progress. The rebuilding of Mulholland's Mill in 1830, and the change from cotton to flax-spinning consequent thereon, may be considered the starting-point of the unexampled development of Belfast from that time. This historic building is shown in the annexed illustration.

As so little is known of our earlier local artists, the Editor has added the following note on the three whose work adorns these pages—viz., Thomas Robinson, painter; John Thomson, engraver; and Patrick MacDowell, sculptor. Probably the first notice of the Belfast artists collectively was written by the Editor for the catalogue of the Loan Collection of Works of Art exhibited at the opening of the Belfast Free Library, 1888. In it Thomas Robinson is thus mentioned—"In 1801, Thomas Robinson, a pupil of Romney, settled in Belfast, where he lived till 1808. He was patronised by Dr. Percy, Bishop of Dromore, and painted several of the portraits exhibited.

His finest work, 'The Review of the Volunteers,' or, as it is called in Redgrave's Dictionary, 'Military Procession at Belfast in Honour of Lord Nelson,' is hung in the centre of Room B, and is the most valuable local painting extant, giving portraits of all the prominent citizens at the time, 1804. Thomas Robinson was President of the Society of Artists, Dublin, and died there, 1810." A letter of his, asking for the loan of Boydell's Prints, is given in Anderson's History of Linen Hall Library. His son, Dr. T. Romney Robinson, for many years Astronomer at Armagh Observatory, was the author of a volume of poems much praised at the time, although he tried to suppress them afterwards. His likeness by his father on the frontispiece resembles his portrait in the "Review." It was found impracticable to reproduce this fine painting, as the surface is much cracked and the colouring very dark. The Key, which has been substituted for it, is executed in brown ink, and gives the various portraits with all the force of the original, omitting alone the fantastic background—added by the painter, it is said, through chagrin, when the lottery scheme for the disposal of the picture failed.

In this connection an unpublished letter of the artist is given from the original, bound up with a copy of "Juvenile Poems, by Thomas Romney Robinson, London, 1807," in the possession of the Editor.

"Madam, so long a space of time has intervened since I left London that it is probable you may not recollect me: but I shall ever remember with gratitude the attention and kindness I experienced from your good Father, of whom (so many changes have taken place among my Friends in the course of thirteen years,) I am almost afraid to enquire. If as I hope he is still alive, he will feel pleasure to learn that I have a son whose extraordinary poetical talents (which appeared at a very early age) have attracted the notice of the literati of almost every part of Europe; so much so, that I have consented to publish his Poems as you will see by the enclosed proposals. In this kingdom the proposals have met with unprecedented encouragement, and are patronised by persons of the first consideration. May I request that Mr. White will have the goodness to permit me to mention his name amongst the gentlemen who receive subscriptions. I could give you a wonderful account of the amazing Talents of my young Poet, which have been evinced not only in Poetry but in other branches of literature, but you may perhaps conceive the praise of a fond father but a small recommendation, however reference may be had to the Countess of Moira Hastings &c Dr. Percy Bishop of Dromore, William Hayley Esq. Chichester, Professor Stewart or Dr. Anderson Edinburgh. As a tribute due to your own taste for Poetry as well as that of your Brother Mr. T. H. White (to whom and Mr. Harry I beg to be remembered) I have requested the Honble Mrs. Murray Aust to leave with you one of his productions which you will have the goodness to return to her after you have read it, in order that it may be forwarded to my friend Mr. Hayley for whom I have painted a Picture of my Boy strewing Flowers on the tomb of my late Master Mr. Romney: an engraving of which picture, with an Elegy on Mr. Romney's death by my son, you will shortly see in the life of that great Artist, which Mr. Hayley is preparing for the press. With best wishes to you and all your good family, I remain, Madam, your most obedient humble servant,

"THOMAS ROBINSON.

"BELFAST, No. 30, Castle Street,
"Sept. 13, 1805."

John Thomson was not the introducer of engraving here, as in 1753 a copperplate press was set up, and Daniel Pomareda came to the town soon afterwards, when an elaborate book plate for the Belfast Library, 1765, was executed probably by him. In Mr. Lavens M. Ewart's large collection of Belfast printed books is a volume of poems by M'Williams, with rude etchings, dated 1795. A portrait of Amyas Griffith, by J. Wilson, the Belfast artist, and one or two frontispieces in local books, may also be mentioned. However, such was the difficulty of getting engravings done here so late as 1794, that the United Irishmen had to procure their badge or ticket from Dublin. It was not till the settlement of Thomson that the art was permanently established. Born at Arbroath, he came to Ireland in 1798 as a Tay Fencible, and was first quartered at Ballymena. He there met a soldier, formerly a stamper of the gold embossing seals used by the Linen Board in Dublin, and was led by his advice to commence business in Ann Street as a cutter of these seals. To this was soon added regular engraving, such as book plates, frontispieces, and cards, with some heraldic silver work for the Donegall family and others. In 1805 the caricatures of the famous "Castlereagh" election were produced by him. His attention was also directed to colour printing for bank-notes and cheques. A specimen still preserved shows he had anticipated modern invention in this respect. He undertook the series of beautiful plates for A. Mackay, Jun., illustrating Benn's first Historical Account of Belfast, 1823. A number of the original copper plates are again used in this work by the kindness of Mr. James Graham, his last surviving pupil, who has successfully carried on the same business till the present time. Amongst these are several which for some reason were never published. Thomson himself was noted for his tasteful ornamental lettering, of which the title-page of the foregoing work is a good example. He also executed a set of copies for the clever writing-master, Thomas Spence. Probably his largest plate is that of which a reduction is here given. It represents a well-known character of old Belfast, Tantra Barbus, whose favourite haunt was the Long Bridge, from which he would jump into the Lagan for a "fipenny." Another scarce engraving by him depicts "Cocky Bendy," a bow-legged fiddler. About 1825 Thomson had accumulated a large fortune, which, in an evil hour, he invested in the business of the Oldpark Print Works. The concern, from bad management, soon collapsed, depriving him of all his savings. Undaunted by the disaster, he worked on for many years in his house at the corner of Castle Street and Fountain Street, where he died at Easter, 1847.

A CELEBRATED ITINERANT HARDWARE MERCHANT
of the North of Ireland

Patrick MacDowell was born in Belfast, August, 1799, son of a small tradesman, who lost all his money in a building speculation. His schoolmaster had been an engraver, and encouraged him to draw. Apprenticed to a coach-maker in London, at the end of four years he became the pupil of Peter Chenu, the sculptor, and exhibited a bust in the Royal Academy, 1822. Entering the Academy Schools, he quickly gained a leading position, mainly by the good offices of Sir James Emerson Tennent, who procured for him, amongst others, commissions from Lord Dungannon, R. M'Calmont, and R. Davison. He was elected R.A. in 1846, in which year was completed his noteworthy statue of Viscount Exmouth at Greenwich. In 1856 the fine bronze figure of Frederick Richard, Earl of Belfast (now in the Free Library), was executed. He continued to exhibit at the Royal Academy up to 1869, when he completed his magnificent group of Europe for the Albert Memorial, and died on December 9th, 1870. His noblest work, not even excepting the "Europe," is the exquisite marble group of the Earl of Belfast and his mother in the Memorial Chapel, Belfast Castle. The reproduction, from the fine photograph by W. Swanston, F.G.S., gives its general appearance, but the delicacy of execution can only be appreciated by seeing the original monument, which is most fittingly placed in the midst of the appropriate and richly designed adornments, by which his sister, the present Countess of Shaftesbury, has converted "the Chapel of the Resurrection" into one of the most beautiful ecclesiastical edifices in this country. The inscription on the tomb is as follows :—"Sacred to the Memory of Harriet Anne, wife of George Hamilton, Third Marquis of Donegall, and Daughter of Richard, first Earl of Glengall. Born 3rd January, 1799. Died 14th September, 1860. And Frederick Richard, Earl of Belfast. Their son. Born 25th November, 1827. Died 15th February, 1853."
